SUBURBAN FISH MEN GOUGE PUBLIC

Charging Three and Four Times What They Pay Wholesalers; Supply Is Ample

Now, it's the fish dealers gouging the consumer.

How? By selling fish for three and four times as much as it costs them.

Suburban fish dealers are squeezing their patrons today. Fish at wholesale is cheaper than since 1914. But suburban dealers are still charging wartime prices.

While intown dealers are content with 100 per cent. profit to cover their overhead expenses, spoilage and waste, the suburban dealer, paying less rent, is charging 200 and 400 per cent.

Figures quoted by Brookline and Melrose dealers to the American over the telephone show that haddock bought for 3¼ to 4½ cents a pound is being sold at from 12 to 15 cents a pound. Steak cod, wholesaling for from 6 1-3 to 7 2-3 cents a pound is retailed in Brookline and Melrose for 25 cents a pound.

It is said that in some instances even higher prices are being charged by unscrupulous suburban dealers, who rely on their patron's ignorance of the state of the wholesale market to profiteer to the limit.

Tons of fresh groundfish reaching the Boston Fish Pier, South Boston, despite a strike which has tied up practically all of the steam trawling fleet, have forced prices back to their pre-war level. Fresh groundfish are cheaper at wholesale today than at any time since the beginning of the world war.

Retail fish prices in the business section of the city have also taken a tumble, and the majority of stores were selling haddock, cod and halibut today at not-exorbitant figures, although there was an unexplained discrepancy of about two cents a pound between the figures of the stores in the market section and those of the terminal district.

Stores located in the vicinity of the market district averaged two cents less than outlying establishments in their prices.

Today's wholesale prices at the Fish Pier were: Haddock 3¼ to 4½ cents a pound; steak cod 6 1-3 to 7 2-3 cents, market cod 4 to 4½ cents, halibut 22 to 25 cents.

Prevailing intown prices were: Haddock, 8 to 10 cents a pound; steak cod, 18 to 20 cents; market cod, 10 cents; halibut, 25 to 40 cents.

One store offered haddock as low as six cents a pound, but its quality was perceptibly far below that offered at eight cents.

DEAREST LITTLE WIFE' SUES HUSBAND'S PARENTS

Mrs. Lewis Flanders, who has brought alienation action in $50,000 against parents of soldier husband who, she says, has left her on account of her refusal to give up dower rights.

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

"You've always been the dearest little wife in the world to me," wrote Lewis Flanders, late sergeant of the 101st Engineers, Company F, to his wife, Hazel Pratt Woodbridge Flanders, just before the furlough that brought him to the Flanders Summer home in Sharon for a second honeymoon with the same "dearest little wife."

During the week he packed his grip, moved his possessions over to the Summer home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Flanders of Brookline and Sharon, and has remained with his parents ever since.

Mrs. Flanders has filed an attachment for $50,000 in a suit alleging alienation against the father and mother of her husband, and a suit asking for separate maintenance for herself. In her Beacon street apartment she is awaiting the development of the suit and the action of

Baker Would Free No Objectors Now

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Recommendations looking to a sweeping reform in the treatment of military prisoners were submitted by Secretary of War Baker to Adjutant-General Harris today. The step was taken following the receipt of a report from a committee recently appointed to study conditions at the disciplinary barracks at Forth Leavenworth.

This committee divided the prisoners now held at Fort Leavenworth into two groups—first, those adjudged sincere in their conscientious objections to all war, and second, those opposed only to the present war. There was no justification for the discharge of either class at the present time, the committee held.

HOLD-UP MAN HELD IN $6,000

Warren J. Driscoll of South Boston Identified in Restaurant Robbery

Warren J. Driscoll of South Boston, who had given his name as John Smylderien, twenty-one, was held in $6,000 bonds for the March term of the Superior Court, charged with assault and battery with intent to kill, robbery and carrying a loaded weapon.

Driscoll was identified by Paul Morrison and Louise Mandy as the man who entered the restaurant of Alfred J. Hewitt of No. 132 Dartmouth street, holding up the night man, John Dencehy, and robbing the till. This was one of the three daring holdups of last night.

Driscoll admitted having served thirty-one months at Concord and his record in the rogues' gallery shows that he was arrested on April 17, 1916, for robbery while armed, in Brighton.

He is also believed to be the man implicated in the robbery of a restaurant at No. 19 Kneeland street, where Miss Delia Bouchard of No. 9 Waltham street narrowly escaped death when the gunman fired a shot at her.

GUARANTEE NEUTRALITY OF U. S. FOOD MISSION

Berlin, Feb. 12, via London, Feb. 13.—The American officials at Spa have given written assurance to the German armistice commission that Colonel Grove U. S. A., and the mission which he heads will remain politically neutral while in the portions of Lithuania held by German troops.

A dispatch to the International News Service yesterday said that Colonel Groves' party, who were on their way from Warsaw to Grodno to study food needs in that part of Lithuania, had been held up by the German military authorities, who refused to let them pass.

ALLIES WIN ON THE ARCHANGEL FRONT

London, Feb. 13.—Bolshevik forces facing the allies on the Archangel front in Northern Russia attacked at Kadish on the 11th but were driven back, said advices from Archangel today.

The Bolsheviki are said to be advancing against their adversaries in Siberia.

The Bolshevik army of 23,000 men on the Archangel front is well equipped, having 151 machine guns, 86 field guns and one nine-inch piece.

MONARCH WOUNDED IN FLIGHT

Ferdinand and Royal Family Forced to Return to Palace in Bucharest

London, Feb. 13.—Another revolution has broken out in Rumania, according to advices reaching here from Amsterdam this afternoon.

King Ferdinand is said to have been wounded in an attempt to escape from Bucharest with the rest of the royal family. The ruler and his party were starting for Jassy when stopped by the rebels. They were forced to return to the palace.

It is said that the King's wound was received when workmen fired upon the palace.

Revolutionary bands are parading the streets of the city, demanding the abdication of the royal government and the organization of a republic.

LETTS AND ESTHONIANS TO SEND DELEGATES

Paris, Feb. 13.—Two more factional governments in Russia—the Esthonian and the Lettish—today notified the peace conference that they would send delegates to take part in the Russo-Allied parley on Princes' Islands in the Sea of Marmora. The offer of the Lettish government to send three delegates is conditional on the withdrawal of armed forces (Bolsheviki) from Letvia.

"POCO" BENNETT PLEADS NOT GUILTY OF LARCENY

Louis Bennett, otherwise known as "Poco" Bennett, of Lorraine terrace, Allston, appeared before Judge Ahern in the Roxbury Court today, charged with the arceny of a battery, on November 13, the property of the Eddie Battery Company, Inc., of No. 725 Beacon street. Bennett pleaded not guilty and his case was continued till February 20. He was arrested at a dance by Special Officer Brett and bailed himself to the amount of $250 with money in his pocket.

SPENS FOR TRAFFIC JOB WITH RAILROADS

Washington, Feb. 13.—Conrad E. Spens, who during the war had charge of traffic for the food administration, was today appointed assistant director of the division of traffic of the railroad administration. He will have charge of export and import traffic of the administration and will cooperate with the Department of Commerce, the Department of State and shipping board in the competition for foreign trade and in establishing new steamship service to foreign countries.

HINDENBURG JOINS ARMY AT HEADQUARTERS

Copenhagen, Feb. 12.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, leader of the German army, has arrived at headquarters at Kolberg (in Pomerania), according to information received here today.

Germany Now Has 850,000 Men Under Arms

By International News Service.

London, Feb. 13 (1:30 p. m.)—Germany's organized military strength is 850,000 men, it was learned here this afternoon. They are constituted as follows: 100,000 warriors not yet demobilized; the 1918 and 1919 classes of 450,000 for a coming standing army; 300,000 volunteer defence troops, comprising twenty divisions, six of which are stationed on the eastern front. The discipline of the volunteers is said to be bad.

Krupps' has been turning out supplies in such quantities as to enable the officers to mobilize an offensive quickly, it was said.

MASS MEETINGS OF RACES IN LAWRENCE

By JOHN F. GAVIN.

Lawrence, Feb. 13.—In an effort to hold their countrymen together, the representatives of the different races involved in the strike troubles here held mass meetings all over the city today. Leaders of every race involved addressed the gatherings and importuned the workers to remain out.

Leaders among the citizens committee and the authorities construe the action as a last effort to uphold the strike. They maintain that the organization is weak and that it will ake great effort to prolong the troubles. It is stated that the Italians, who were the leaders in the 1912 strike, are not at all enthusiastic about the present troubles. In fact some assert that the Italians are ready to return to work.

PLANS DRASTIC MEASURE.

Jose Kaplan who went to Manchester last night to attempt to have the Manchester policemen withdrawn from this city returned this afternoon. He was among those who conferred with Immigration Commissioner Skeffington, from Boston. Commissioner Skeffington met a majority of the strike leaders as well as members of the Mayor's committee.

The executive committee of the Mayor's Committee held a meeting today for the purpose of outlining a course to be pursued against the new form of terrorism. They made plans for combat-

May Tax Child Labor Law-Breakers Out of Business

Resolutions requesting Congress to impose a prohibitive tax upon the product of manufacturers who work women and children more than forty-eight hours a week were reported in the State senate today by the committee on federal relations.

While it is believed that Congress has not the power to regulate hours of labor it has power to drive those who refuse a forty-eight hour week to women and children out of business by high taxes.

ULTIMATUM IN ENTENTE ACTION

London, Feb. 13.—British delegates to the peace conference have been instructed to claim indemnities from Germany, and the costs of the war as well as damages, it was announced in the House of Commons this afternoon by A. Bonar Law, the government leader.

Paris, Feb. 13.—"The new armistice terms amount to an ultimatum to Germany," said M. Pertinax today in the Echo de Paris. "They include a command to the Germans not to undertake any offensive against the Poles," continued this writer.

The new armistice conditions are said to constitute a British compromise between the American and French viewpoints. Marcel Hutin, famous French authority on military and political affairs, says that Germany will be sufficiently disarmed "to remove all fear of a return to an offensive against the allies."

The French press generally takes the view that the new conditions now officially approved include a provision that the armistice may be denounced on forty-eight hours' notice unless Germany fulfills all of the original terms.

Meanwhile military experts will draw up further conditions to be embodied in a new convention, which will remain in effect with the force of actual law, until the peace preliminaries are signed.

It was predicted today when the League of Nations committee met that the occupation of the Rhine with a big international army would not form a feature of any of the statutes in the League of Nations constitution.

The possibility of new German aggressions on the Rhine has formed the ever haunting fear of the French delegates. It was the French who suggested that an international force be held along the Rhine to insure peace, as part of the plan of the League of Nations, but it was opposed by the British and American.

BLAMES SENATE FOR SPREAD OF BOLSHEVISM

Washington, Feb. 13.—The United States Senate is responsible for the present spread of Bolshevism in the United States, Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, renewing his demand for passage of a resolution for the withdrawal of American troops in Russia, declared in the Senate this afternoon.

BRITISH MINERS ARE TO TAKE STRIKE VOTE

Southport, Eng., Feb. 13.—The Miners' Federation in session here decided today to vote on the question of a national strike. The ballots are returnable on February 22, and if in favor of a strike, it will be effective March 15.

CROWDER REAPPOINTED AS JUDGE ADVOCATE

Washington, Feb. 13.—The President this afternoon sent to the Senate the nomination of Major-General Enoch H. Crowder, judge advocate general, to be judge advocate general with the rank of major-general for the period of four years beginning February 13, 1919, with rank from October 6, 1917.

2,000,000 JOIN THE HEARST CAMPAIGN FOR BONUS FOR WAR HEROES

New York, Feb. 13—Here are some facts in regard to the gigantic petition which the Hearst newspapers will present to Congress, urging that returned soldiers, sailors and marines be granted six months' pay gratuity.

More than 2,000,000 signatures have been affixed to the petition up to date.

It has received the indorsement of legislatures in Illinois, New York, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Missouri, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Minnesota and North Carolina.

In up for consideration by the legislatures of more than a score of other states.

The Governors of twenty-five States have indorsed in full the Hearst plan of six months' pay and the Governors of ten other States declare the gratuity should be at least approximate the figure set by Mr. Hearst.

Representing 600,000 laboring men, the Central Federated Union of New York indorsed the Hearst petition without a dissenting vote.

Seventeen United States senators have expressed themselves as in full accord with the six months' idea.

Within six weeks, it is estimated, 2,000,000 signatures have been obtained and they continue to reach the New York American office at the rate of more than 100,000 daily.

Cooperating with the Hearst newspapers are twenty-one other leading dailies and hundreds of small country papers from coast to coast, and scores of the biggest employers of labor in the country. In Dayton, O., the executive of the National Cash Register Company set up the coupons and to date have forwarded to the New York American some thing like 20,000 signatures.

More than 15,000 signatures have been received from the Hog Island shipyards and 21,000 from the Remington Arms Company, the Singer Sewing Machine Company and other large manufacturing plants in Bridgeport, Ct.

To the Hearst newspapers is due the credit of presenting to Congress the greatest petition on record—that of 2,000,000 signatures attached to the petition on universal military service.

It is likely that this record will be outdone by the petition now being raised, as at least 2,000,000 signatures will be affixed to it before it is shown before Congress.

Petition to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to Send Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Home with Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:
To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

(Signed)

Resolve Urging Bonus Unanimously Reported to House

Without a dissenting vote, the Joint Committee on Federal Relations of the Massachusetts Legislature, composed of eleven of the leading senators and representatives of this State, has endorsed the plan whereby honorably discharged soldiers and sailors shall receive a bonus of six months' pay.

Following an enthusiastic hearing at the State House the committee, in executive session, unanimously voted to favorably report to the Legislature the bill of Representative A. E. Miles of Malden. This bill is in the form of resolutions urging Congress to pass the necessary legislation giving men just out of service six months' additional pay.

Later the favorable report of the committee was filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives and it is up for action today by that body. Friends of the bill predict that both branches will act favorably on the bill without delay.

The speedy action of the Federal Relations Committee was due to the unqualified support given the bill during the hearing which preceded the executive session as well as the personal relief of every member that the least this nation can do for its heroes is to give them sufficient cash with which to buy clothing and provide support there while they are looking for employment.

MEMBERS OF COMMITTEE.

House Chairman Henry Achim of Lowell presided at the hearing as well as at the executive session of the committee. The other members of the committee are Senators John Hallet of New Bedford, Malcolm E. Nichols of Boston, and John Cronin of Lowell; Representatives William J. French of Somerville, George L. Richards of Malden, Ernest Laroque of Fall River, John Thomas of Gloucester, Benjamin C. Lane of Boston, William J. Manning of Boston and Daniel J. Hayden of Lynn.

The public hearing on the bill was one of the most enthusiastic held by the committee since its organization. Leading labor leaders, representatives of patriotic organizations, clergymen, members of the State Legislature, mothers and fathers of men in service and others who wish to secure a square deal for the boys who fought for world democracy addressed the committee in favor of the bill. There was not a voice raised in opposition.

Many of the speakers told of the crying need of many of the men who leave service with not enough money to buy civilian clothes. Several told of the difficulty many heroes have had in securing employment.

All declared they believed six months' pay a trifling gift for such a rich government as ours to present its fighters upon their discharge. Some said they favored the presentation of another six months' pay to the need of men just leaving service, citing his own case as an instance.

He said he wore his uniform for four weeks until he could secure the necessary money with which to buy a civilian outfit. He spoke of the high prices of clothing by stating that the clothes he had on cost $100 and that as six months' pay for the average man just out of service would be only approximately $200, it would be little enough to put a man on his feet.

Mrs. A. M. Counting of Newton, who has two sons in service, told of the gallant work done by the 26th D. Infantry at the battle of Chateau Thierry. She told of them coming out of the battle "in rags and filthy" and said that medals were promised them after that fight. "Instead of medals give them six months' pay," she concluded amid the plaudits of those assembled.

A representative of the Boston American addressed the committee on invitation of Representative Bliss and told of the work done by the Hearst newspapers in collecting nearly a million and a half signatures to their six-months'-pay-for-soldiers petition. Of this number he explained 136,000 were from New England—most of them from Massachusetts.

He also told of the indorsements given the American's petition by Oliver Wilson of Peoria, Ill., national master of the Grange; Leslie R. Smith, Massachusetts State Grangemen, either by the nation or the State.

TRAINMEN FOR MEASURE.

Among those who favored the bill were W. J. McDonald, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who declared that his organization cared more fighters to the nation than any other labor body; D. J. Mahoney, representing the masonry trades of the State; Timothy W. Kelly, department commander of the Massachusetts Spanish War Veterans, who declared that many men just out of service who applied to him for assistance had been turned over to the Red Cross.

Others favoring Representative Bliss' bill included Representatives Bissett of New Bedford, Driscoll of Boston and Jones of Pittsfield; Rabbi David M. Sholet of Roxbury and J. Durnan of East Boston, Julius Meyers of Boston and John Rochelo of Framingham, whose son just returned from service in France.

A. S. Shubow told the committee he was discharged from service six weeks ago and desired to give testimony as a man who had gone through the mill and was willing to offer his life for the country. He spoke of the great talent of the gentle organization; Eliza H. Dagget of Attleboro, national president of the Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the G. A. R.

In addition, he explained that Mrs. Flora S. Chapin, Cora J. Hoyt, Alice B. Jordan, Jessie A. Shurtevant and Susan F. Jepson, New England State presidents of the W. R. C., had given their hearty endorsement of the project. Others who approved of the petition included the president and secretary of the Boston C. L. U. and officials of numerous other labor and social organizations.

Meanwhile, volunteer workers everywhere are straining every effort to add several thousand more names to those of the 156,000 who have already signed the six months' pay for soldiers petition of the Boston American with the rapid approach of the time for congressional action.

Soldiers' Service Bureau Answers All Queries from Relatives and Friends

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American is dedicated to the purpose of doing things for the soldiers and sailors of Uncle Sam. It is for officers and men alike. Answers to questions will be published in the American daily, and many personal services will be done for the soldiers and sailors as stated below.

The department is not merely operated as a question and answer column. It is co-operating with similar departments in Hearst's New York American, Chicago Examiner, Atlanta Georgian, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Attorneys will answer questions of a legal nature and undertake many kinds of legal work in the courts for officers and enlisted men in behalf of the Boston American and its associated Hearst newspapers.

Please write any suggestion you have for widening the activities of this department.

Address all communications to Soldiers' Service Bureau, Boston American. No. 80 Summer street, Boston. Letters marked "confidential" will be so treated. Men of the army and navy, let us help you.

Persons finding the discharge papers of soldiers or sailors should make every effort to return them to their owners. A discharge paper cannot be duplicated. The War Department can only issue a certificate that the discharge has been given. Frequently the owner loses his original, and would greatly appreciate its return.

Be Sure to Get Your Income Tax Blank in Next 2 Weeks

Blank forms to be used in filing your income tax return will be mailed to every individual who filed a tax return last year.

In case you did not file an income tax return last year, or in the event of your failure to receive a blank by mail in the next fortnight, you must either call or send for a blank at the office of the United States Collector of Internal Revenue, second cor. Little Building, at the corner of Boylston and Tremont streets, Boston.

The blanks for incomes of individuals up to $5,000 will be sent out within a few days. Forms for larger incomes will be distributed February 24, while forms for corporations will be available March 1.

INCOME TAX TO BE PAID IN INSTALLMENTS

On or before March 15 all married persons receiving more than $2,000 income during the calendar year 1918, and all single persons whose incomes totaled more than $1,000 during 1918, must file an income tax return with the Federal Collector of Internal Revenue in the Little building, accompanied by 25 per cent. of their 1919 income tax.

The remainder of their tax may be paid in quarterly installments during the coming year beginning March 15.

In computing one's income tax $200 may be added to the amount of incomes exempted from taxation for each dependent child or defective relative dependent upon the taxpayer for support.

For instance: If you are a married man with three minor children, you would be entitled to an exemption of $2,600. If your income during 1918 from every source totaled but $2,500, you would not be obliged to pay any income tax, although, under the law, you must file a return.

$4,500 TAX ON $30 SALARY.

If you are a single man with an income of $30 a week received from wages or salary, and own no real estate, securities or other revenue-bearing property, you will pay a tax on all you earn above $1,000 a year, or, in the case of a 1918 income of $1,560 ($30 a week), 6 per cent. of $560 or $33.60.

If you are married and have one child, and your total income is $30 a week ($2,600 a year) you must pay a tax on the difference between your $2,600 income for 1918 and your exemption of $2,200, or 6 per cent. of $400 which is $24.

Suppose you earned $60 a week or $3,350 during 1918 and, in addition, had an income of $2,400 from rented houses and shares of stock. In that case your total income for 1918 would be $5,520. If you were single and the sole support of a widowed mother you would be entitled to an exemption of $1,200. You would therefore be taxed upon but $4,320 of your total income. But the law provides that the tax upon all amounts over and above $4,000 (exemptions (or "credits") have been deducted shall be taxed at the rate of 12 per cent. Hence you would pay an income tax of 6 per cent. on $1,000 of your income, or $60, a surtax of 1 per cent. of $520, which together total $283.60 — the exact amount of your income tax.

All incomes over and above $5,000 are subject to graduated surtax beginning at 1 per cent. and running up to 65 per cent. on incomes of $1,000,000 a year or over.

TABLE OF TAXATION.

The following table shows the net amount of tax levied upon citizens or residents of the United States whose net taxable income contains no dividends or tax-free covenant bonds:

Net Taxable Income During 1918.	Amount of Tax—Single Persons.	Married Persons.
$2,500	$30	$60
3,000	60	120
3,500	90	150
4,000	120	180
4,500	150	210
5,000	180	240
6,000	240	300
7,000	300	360
8,000	360	420
9,000	420	480
10,000	480	540
12,000	540	570
14,000	570	600
16,000	600	625
18,000	625	650
20,000	650	750
50,000	750	875
100,000	875	900

1. Subtract from the above amounts 2 per cent. of amount of interest on tax-free covenant bonds if no exemption was claimed on same.

2. MR. FAMILY MAN:

Why Spend So Much Money on Shoes?

Here is what Tracy Munson of Joplin, Missouri, says of Neolin Soles: "Judging from my own experience, they wear four times longer than other soles and have the additional advantage of being waterproof and slip-proof."

Why continue to wear extravagant old-fashioned soles when you can get these money-saving, long-wearing soles on new shoes in any style you like for any member of the family? Good shoe stores everywhere carry them.

And don't throw away your old shoes. Have them re-bottomed with Neolin Soles and enjoy the comfort of a re-soled shoe which is not stiff or clumsy. Neolin Soles are a discovery of Science, and are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

WIFE OF BATES, ACCUSED AS SLAYER, TELLS OF HIS MOODY SPELLS

INSANITY PLEA OF DEFENCE

Miss Simpson, Shot When Mrs. Cole Was Killed, Testifies in Maine Murder Trial

Augusta, Me., Feb. 13.—Mrs. Langdon Bates took the stand today in defence of her husband, accused of the murder of Mrs. Edith Cole, of Winslow, by shooting August 13 last, and told of her husband's erratic moods, through which the defence hopes to establish Bates' insanity. That insanity would be the defence was brought out by Attorney General N. Perkins, of Waterville, in his opening.

Mrs. Bates stated that she knew nothing of the relations between her husband and Miss Alice Simpson, at whom he is alleged to have shot when Mrs. Cole was killed, and who was wounded by another bullet. The State contends that Bates was desperately in love with Miss Simpson, who did not reciprocate his affection.

HUSBAND BECAME MOODY.

Mrs. Bates testified that she was married in Winslow seventeen years ago. Five years ago, she said, began a series of sicknesses in the family which continued constantly. Under the strain of these, she said, her husband became very moody. At times he would be genial and gentle and at other times morose and surly. He complained of severe headaches.

Albert Seams, a fellow worker in the shop with Bates, testified that Bates' behavior was peculiar; that he was moody and erratic, and that such "spells" had become more frequent and more noticeable in 1918. Daniel H. Thynn, another worker with Bates, corroborated Seams' testimony.

Miss Simpson, who had previously testified, was recalled to the stand today to explain the meaning of the note found in her home. On direct examination she said that because an automobile had been heard in her yard or a nearby yard, late at night, and because a young man had been employed to mow the lawn, Bates had become jealous and written her this appeal because of these incidents. She said that she had not been out in the car herself, but that he thought she had.

FAILS TO CONNECT DATES.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Pettengill, counsel for the defence, Miss Simpson failed to connect dates with the automobile incidents, but insisted that it was the automobile incidents to which the note referred.

Fred Simpson, a police officer of Winslow, said that in 1913 he had warned Bates regarding his attentions to Miss Simpson. At that time he said he had told Bates to cease. Bates at that time appeared very angry. He said, "I'll show that d—d bunch that I'm not afraid of them."

Although Miss Simpson and Mrs. Coles were very friendly, the relations between Mrs. Coles and Bates were known to be the direct opposite to friendship, Ferdinand Simpson, another witness, told the court. He said that he had noticed Bates when he believed that he was following Mrs. Cole, and he said that he had seen Bates raking a field in the vicinity of Miss Simpson's home.

Cross examined, the witness admitted that usually when he had seen Bates and Miss Simpson on the street together, it was at times when they were returning from their work in the mill.

ROOSEVELT FILM GIVEN FIRST FOR CHARITY

Members of the Junior Charity Club active in plans for entertainment this evening. Left to right, standing, Mrs. Winifred Church, Miss Dorothy Holmes, Miss Elsie Howlett. Middle row, Misses Mabelle Bonnelli, Marion Howlett, Irene Carruthers. Front row, Misses Marcia Hazeltine, Ruth Hazeltine and Anna Reed. Photo by White, Boston.

A popular patriotic entertainment is promised Boston admirers of the late President Roosevelt tonight when the four-hour photoplay entitled "Our Teddy—Father of the Fighting Roosevelts," will be shown at the Boston Opera House under the auspices of the Junior Charity Club. The cinema feature was authorized and personally supervised by the late exponent of the strenuous life, whose virile Americanism is aptly portrayed in the filmspectacle of his life and deeds.

Enthusiastic praise of the big film-feature has been expressed by Roosevelt admirers wherever the picture has been shown, and thousands of new friends of the photo-record of the American Immortal will be made at the showing of tonight's picture.

The proceeds from the showing of the film will be applied to the general charitable fund of the organization.

An added feature of the attraction will be the singing and dancing of the Cameron sisters of Brookline, who are appearing in "Little Simplicity" at the Wilbur Theatre this week. The entertainment is under the direction of Mrs. William A. Mitchell, chairman.

LOVE TRAGEDY IN SOLDIER'S DEATH

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Feb. 13.—Love for a vivacious Southern girl is said to solve the mystery of the death of Corporal Maynard Padgett, A Company, 36th Infantry, whose body was found near the rifle range. There was a bullet wound in the head, but an army revolver was nearby.

Padgett's home was in Pera, Va. During an investigation today to fix the cause for the death, it was said that when the soldier joined the army he left a sweetheart behind him.

The girl, however, gave Padgett a small gold locket in which she placed her picture. Men at this cantonment assert that the dead soldier was often seen during the day to take the locket from his pocket and look at the picture of the girl who he believed would be waiting to welcome him when he shed the khaki for civilian garb.

Finally, it is said, Padgett failed to receive letters regularly from his sweetheart. Then came a time when they ceased. The young soldier became silent and worried.

It is reported that he wrote to friends in Virginia when the girl failed to respond to his letters and asked them to tell him why his sweetheart had spurned him.

This request was followed by news from the South that another man had entered the life of the girl of his dreams. This other man had won that place in her esteem.

At the camp here it was said that Padgett became heart-broken when he received the news. The last seen of him alive was when, he was on his way to the rifle range, which is situated in a deserted part of the camp. Later two civilians came upon his dead body and notified the military authorities, who immediately instituted an investigation.

There were several letters in Padgett's pockets when his body was found. One is said to have been addressed to the girl who gave him the locket with her picture and then gave her love to another. The rest were to members of his family.

The contents of the letters were not made known by the military authorities. They will be forwarded to the persons to whom they were addressed.

Press Is Unjustly Abused, Declares Library Worker

"Newspaper reporters, editors and publishers are unjustly abused," said Miss Katherine P. Loring, former president of the Massachusetts Library Club, at its midwinter meeting in Faneuil Hall today. "The English of the American newspaper is some of the best we have. It is terse, simple and concise." Miss Loring made the statement in an address on "The King's English and the Librarian's."

ATTWILL FINDS AGAINST HOURS IN BAKERIES

Attorney-General Attwill, in an opinion handed down today, held unconstitutional the measure of the A. F. of L. which moved prohibiting the baking of bread, rolls, cake and similar foodstuffs in any bakery after 5 p. m. or before 4 p. m.

The opinion was rendered in response to a request of the committee on bills on a third reading.

The attorney-general bases his opinion upon decisions handed down by courts in New York and in this State.

"In a case of a nature such as this, which was tried in New York," he says: "It was decided that a statute of that State limiting the hours of employment in bakeries to ten hours a day was unconstitutional, as it was an illegal interference with the rights of individuals to make contracts regarding labor upon such terms as they think best, of which they may agree upon with the other parties to the contract.

"A similar decision was handed down by Massachusetts courts in regard to hours of labor for employes of the Boston & Maine. It seems clear from these decisions that the bill would be unconstitutional if enacted into law."

GIVEN 6 MONTHS ON CHARGE OF $150 THEFT

Julius Lackowitch of Allston, charged with the larceny of $150 from Mario Agri, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Creed in the Municipal Court today.

Agri claims he was taken to Lackowitch's office by a woman who said he could be placed in an exempted class in the draft. Agri, who is an alien, was placed in class five. Not knowing he was entitled to such classification, he believed Lackowitch had done it and paid out $150. He received a receipt from Lackowitch, he said, signed with another name. Today in court, Lackowitch denied everything charged against him, but admitted that he had met Agri on a real estate deal.

William Hill of the Department of Justice testified that he was one of a raiding party when the arrest was made, and that at that time he secured a number of envelopes bearing handwriting which Lackowitch admitted at that time as his. In court he made a denial. A specimen of his handwriting was secured and passed to the judge, who ruled that it was a resemblance to that on the receipt. The sentence followed. Lackowitch appealed and was held in $1,000 bonds.

The woman referred to in the case is said to be the one who will face trial in the East Cambridge Court at a near date, charged with larceny of $940 from Agri. It is claimed that she went to Agri after a while and said that the government was getting after those in class five, and that she believed that she could help it "fixed" to have him remain. Agri listened to her tale and parted with his money, it was said.

Now Agri found out that he was bunco'ed and filed complaint. Hill, the Department of Justice man in the court that Agri was only one of a great many who had been fleeced in similar ways.

WIFE, IN INSANE WARD, FIGHTS DIVORCE

Mrs. Jennie E. Woodbury, who is now in the State Insane Hospital at Westboro, is contesting the suit for divorce brought by her husband, Everett W. Woodbury of Quincy, which began before Judge Chase at East Cambridge today.

Woodbury alleges cruel and abusive treatment and is represented by Guy A. Ham. Judge Thomas P. Riley of Malden is counsel for Mrs. Woodbury, who has been in the Westboro institution for three months.

The Woodburys were married in 1909, lived in Medford and have two boys.

Woodbury, the opening witness, said that in 1914 he worried for the Boston & Maine Railroad. He said that one night he came home and his wife accused him of staying out late on the street corner. He turned his back on her. She retaliated by jabbing a fork into his hand.

Another domestic incident he testified to, occurred at her mother's cottage at Hough's Neck. In 1915, he was shaving. His wife threw a bar of soap at him which struck the razor causing him to cut himself.

He said he left her two or three times because he could not endure living with her. Once when he went to her mother's cottage, his wife met him at the door with, "What the h—are you doing here?" "I came to see the children," he said. "You can't," he said she replied. "You stay out of here or I'll shoot you." She emphasized the threat, he said, by pulling out a revolver and ordering him off the place.

She broke his glasses once by hitting him across the face with a dishcloth. Four other times she struck him in the face with her hand, breaking his glasses each time.

Mrs. Rose Fraser, of East Braintree, mother of Mrs. Woodbury, testified that her daughter married when eighteen years old. At various times her daughter had lived with her. Once she lived with her sixteen months, she said. "She had no home," she explained. During this period, the mother testified the daughter did not receive a penny from Woodbury, and went out to work.

Judge Chase took the case under advisement pending receipt of a report on the mental condition of Mrs. Woodbury.

FLAGS OF TWO NATIONS ON McCORMACK BIER

The funeral of Ensign Ralph Robey McCormack of the Navy Aviation Service, who was killed at Pensacola, Florida, was held today at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary J. McCormack, at No. 41 Prichard avenue, West Somerville.

The service was conducted by the Rev. W. F. Wilson, pastor of the West Somerville Baptist Church, where the ensign was a member of the Brown Men's Class of the Bible School. The male quartette of the church sang. The casket was draped with the American flag and the Union Jack. A delegation of sailors from the Navy Yard was present, and a guard of honor escorted the cortege to the cemetery in Winthrop. Taps were sounded over the grave.

OPPOSE ABOLISHMENT OF SMALL LIBRARIES

Small-town libraries with incomes of less than a thousand dollars might be abolished in Indiana, but that such a step would never do in New England was demonstrated by a storm of protest to a proposition made at the midwinter meeting of the Massachusetts Library Club in Faneuil Hall today. Library workers from all parts of Southern New England expressed their protest to a statement made to this effect by Henry N. Sanborn, librarian at Bridgewater. "I know of libraries receiving only $27 to $50 a year that I wouldn't have abolished for anything," said Miss Alice G. Chandler of Lancaster, a prominent rural library worker.

TODAY IN CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 13.—The charge that British spinners are being permitted by the administration to control the price of American cotton was made in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Hardwick of Georgia. He demanded the removal of the embargo which prevents the shipment of American cotton not only to the former enemies of the United States but to neutrals as well.

Washington, Feb. 13.—In a final effort to avert an extra session, Senate Democrats will caucus tonight to decide upon whether to compel night sessions during the remainder of the present session in order to get the regular supply bills through both houses before March 4.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Packing houses must in the future come under the control of the federal government, Clarence N. Ousley, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, declared before the Senate Agricultural Committee today. Ousley recommended passage of the Kendrick bill which would give authority to regulate the packers to the Department of Agriculture.

FORBES' DOG BITES BOY; $1,200 AWARD BY JURY

W. Cameron Forbes of Westwood, formerly Governor-General of the Philippines, will have to pay $1,200 to eleven-year-old Mark Connolly, Jr., of Norwood, for a dog-bite, a jury in the Superior Court at Dedham, before Judge McLaughlin, decreed today. The boy brought suit through his father. It was charged that on November 29, 1916, while the boy and a chum were picking up leaves near the Forbes home, he was attacked by a collie belonging to Mr. Forbes. Judge McLaughlin instructed the jury to double the amount of damages found, which was set at $600.

ARREST ASSASSIN OF KENTUCKY GOVERNOR

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 12.—The man who assassinated Governor William Goebel of Kentucky several years ago has been arrested in Astoria, Ore., according to a report being investigated here. Shortly after the murder, which was Kentucky's most famous political crime, three men were convicted of complicity, but the man suspected of having committed the murder escaped. Caleb Powers and James B. Howard were pardoned by Governor Willson. Henry Youtzy, the third man convicted, was paroled recently.

BOY KILLED 30 COWS TO "SEE 'EM WIGGLE"

Colebrook, N. H., Feb. 12.—The confession of a fourteen-year-old boy, in which he admitted that he "liked to watch them wiggle after hitting them," has cleared up the mysterious deaths of thirty cows owned by Job Cross, a wealthy farmer of this place.

Baffled by the deaths of his cattle Farmer Cross called in Veterinary Surgeon Sewell. After an autopsy on the animals the veterinary said he could not tell the cause of their deaths. Cross then asked the assistance of Dr. A. J. Defosset, United States inspector of live stock. He was likewise baffled.

When the boy was questioned, he finally admitted that he had killed the cows. He said he had seen some calves slaughtered and wanted to try it himself.

"I liked to watch them wiggle after hitting them," he said.

Why Swift & Company Handle Poultry, Eggs, Butter and Cheese

Swift & Company went into the produce business because they saw a crying need for the kind of service they were equipped to perform.

The produce business was in chaos. Collecting, transportation, preparation and distribution was hit-or-miss, with delay, deterioration and loss on every hand.

The farmer was at the mercy of an uncertain, localized market. He had no way of reaching through to the people who needed what he was raising for them. There was no premium upon improving his stocks, for grading was lax or lacking.

The consumer had to accept produce that, as a rule, had no known responsible name behind it. He had no way of knowing how long the eggs or the butter he was buying had been lying around in miscellaneous lots in the back room of a country store Much of the poultry was not properly refrigerated before shipment or properly protected by refrigeration in transit.

Swift & Company's initiative brought system to this chaos. Their organization, equipment, and experience in handling perishable food products were already adjusted to the task. Their refrigerator cars, branch houses, central points, far-reaching connections, trained sales force, supplied just what was demanded.

Now the farmer has a daily cash market in touch with the nation's needs with better prices. Standardization makes better produce more profitable. More consumers are served with better, fresher, finer foodstuffs.

Nothing suffers from this save inefficiency, which has no claim upon public support.

'DEAREST WIFE' STARTS $50,000 SUIT FOR LOST LOVE

Mrs. Flanders Accuses Husband's Parents in Alienation Case

the father and mother, who, she says, robbed her of all she holds dearest in the whole world. She has retained as counsel Major Thomas L. Walsh, of Walsh & Walsh, Room 707, No. 18 Tremont street.

WILL SHOW LOVE LETTERS.

Impassioned love letters, written from all over Flanders, and repeating in every way in which his vocabulary was capable of expressing it the words "I love you," will figure conspicuously in the suit. Letters written after the return of Sergeant Flanders to New York, where he was returned as an instructor, and in which he begged his wife to come to New York to see him, and letters in which he planned for the little place they would have together in the South, when he should be transferred there, will also be shown the court. Letters written to her wife during the very week he left her, assuring her of his undying love for her, will prove interesting exhibits.

"Flanders' Latest Report—I love you," and "Dearest of all the world, how I love you," are excerpts from the voluminous correspondence now in the hands of Mrs. Flanders' lawyer.

PROMINENT IN SOCIAL CIRCLES.

The prominence of both parties promises to attract much attention to the suit. Mrs. Flanders, before her marriage to the young Harvard man, who was also a prominent First Corps Cadet man, was Mrs. Hazel Pratt Woodbridge, widow of William Butler Woodbridge, founder of the Columbia Life Insurance Company. His tragic death in an automobile accident, in 1905, first brought her into prominence, and the subsequent litigation over his $500,000 estate dragged through the courts for years.

Mrs. Woodbridge first met Lewis Flanders eight years ago in Sharon, which has been the scene of most of their marital happiness, as well as their unhappiness. Their summer homes were near together, and their friendship during that first summer was that of pleasant country neighbors. This relation deepened after a winter in town, and in the following August Mrs. Woodbridge and Lewis Flanders were quietly married. That was seven years ago.

An ideal existence, a constant honeymoon, unmarred by the slightest domestic cloud has been their record ever since, according to the story that Mrs. Flanders will tell the court. The little rift within the lute' was caused first by an attempt of the Flanders, senior, to compel Mrs. Flanders to sign some papers. This she refused to do. The trouble that arose led, she says now, to the absolute desertion of his wife by her husband.

REFUSED TO SIGN PAPERS.

"Lewis was a member of the 101st Engineers, and went overseas with them, over a year ago" runs the story as Mrs. Flanders tells it. "Just before he left, his mother came to me, asking me to sign some papers that had been drawn up by the father. I agreed to do so, but only if so advised by my lawyers. I have had so much experience in signing papers, and seen so much trouble come out of it, that I believe a woman is always justified in protecting herself. I took them to my lawyer who advised me not to sign them, as it was a practical signing off of all my dower rights, leaving me absolutely penniless, if anything happened to my husband in action, abroad.

"Nothing further was said about the papers before he sailed, and there was no reference made to them in the letters that he wrote to me from France. I moved from the Longwood avenue home of his parents to this little Beacon street apartment here, and have lived here with my mother ever since. My husband made arrangements for an allowance from his father and, learning that I was not receiving all of that, made an allotment to me from his pay as well.

"I know that he was always thinking of my welfare then, for he wrote me from France that he had taken out the $10,000 life insurance for me, 'that he felt that this was the least that he could possibly do for me.'

"While he was away I made knitted things and sent boxes to the company, but I still felt that I was not doing enough. Finally, a letter came from Lewis, asking his father if he would not start a fund for the company, as there were so many chaps who did not have money for comforts and luxuries, and who needed them.

STARTED FUND FOR BOYS.

"His father did not do it—so I did. I bought 200 of those little fund boxes, placed them in stores and around in public places myself, and Jack Winter collected $900 for the company. I was so happy doing it, and my husband was so proud and so happy when the money came.

"Finally the time came for opening the Sharon home—the home that we had always loved and enjoyed together. First, I thought I could not possibly do it, and then I decided to go down, open the house, make a little garden and be as happy as I could. I began to have a feeling, too, that Lewis would soon be home. We went down, opened the house and started our garden. Then in the Summer came the telegram that Lewis was in New York. His mother was surprised, but I was not. I knew that he was coming from the first.

"I had prayed so hard I knew it could not be otherwise.

"A long distance call followed the telegram, and Lewis begged us to come to New York. He wanted his mother and me to motor over at once, but we delayed a little, because she thought he would secure his furlough at once, and be home. When he did not come, we went over.

"We arrived at the Biltmore on Friday night, and before she had reached her hat off, Mrs. Flanders turned to her son and said "Lewis, Hazel will not sign those papers." I explained my position, and told him that after they were explained to me by a lawyer, in the presence of his mother and himself, I would sign them. And he said, "Never mind the papers, darling. Lets forget them and never speak of them again. Lets be happy."

PLANNED TO GO SOUTH.

"His mother went back to Brookline on Sunday morning, but he would not let me go. He told his mother that he could not part with me so soon, and that he was going to keep me with him as long as he could. And we planned, if he should be transferred to the South as an instructor that I should go, and that we would find some little place and live together, as long as he had to be away.

"Finally the long-looked-for furlough arrived, and Lewis came back to Boston. We were ideally happy for a few days—we spent Labor Day together, and the following Tuesday and Wednesday. He asked me again to sign those papers, and I refused, giving my reason. He promised then never to speak of them again. 'I'll never give you up, Hazel, never, no matter what happens,' he repeatedly told me.

"Finally, on the Wednesday of the first week in September, his mother went for him four times that day. When he returned he asked once more if I would sign those papers. I told him once again that I could not, and he said: "Then I will leave you." He packed his bag and went to his mothers' house, and I have not seen him since.

"He remained at Sharon during the rest of his furlough, and every morning went in town with his mother on the 8 o'clock train, and came out again at 5. His furlough was up on Tuesday, and that morning his mother drove him to the train in the machine, taking the back road so that he would not be obliged to pass my house. I was ill, and delirious, and I could not believe it was true.

"Ever since, I have felt that it was all a bad dream, and that we would awaken in the morning and forget it all. It does not seem as if a happiness such as ours could go to pieces so completely. In one letter to my lawyer he said that he 'would expect to provide a comfortable home for me,' and in another he said that he 'would not give me a d——cent.'

"He received his discharge from the army just before Christmas, and has been living at the Longwood avenue home ever since. When he did not come back to me on Christmas, I knew that indeed, the dream was a reality."

BLAMES PARENTS.

Mrs. Flanders, who is a handsome and vivacious brunette, is the mother of two sons, William B. Woodbridge and West Pratt Woodbridge. The sons, with their young wives, are loyally supporting their mother in the domestic tragedy that has overtaken her.

Mrs. Flanders acknowledges that there was considerable of a difference in the ages of her husband, Lewis Flanders, Harvard '11, and herself, but it was a difference that he knew all about, before the marriage she said. She even took a trip to Chicago, making a long visit there, before her marriage, in order to allow young Flanders plenty of opportunity for changing his mind if he cared to do so. But the flood of telegrams and letters that followed her there showed that he had no inclination to do such a thing.

All of the subsequent trouble she attributes to the efforts of the parents of her husband to separate them. "If they had never lived to come between us I know that we would have been happy all the rest of our lives," she says.

POLICE WIN RACE FOR 670 QUARTS OF WHISKEY

Kennebunk, Me., Feb. 13.—A five-mile automobile chase, from Wells to the end of a trap on the Boston-Portland State Highway, resulted in the capture of two men, an automobile and 670 quarts of whiskey by the police here. Charles Cirgo and Ralph Trotier of Haverhill, Mass., were the names given the police. They were on the way to Portland. Each furnished cash bail for their appearance before the Grand Jury.

CLASSMATE DELIVERS EULOGY ON FR. O'KEEFE

The funeral of the Rev. Michael J. O'Keefe, a curate at Houlton, Me., was held from his late residence today, No. 29 St. Rose street, Jamaica Plain. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Thomas' Church, Jamaica Plain, with the Rev. John McMahon celebrant; Francis Phalen, deacon; John Johnstone, sub-deacon. The eulogy was delivered by the Rev. William Curry, a former classmate at Boston College and a lifelong friend. Many clergymen, including the pastor at Houlton, Rev. Patrick R. Silk, attended the services. Burial was at Calvary Cemetery.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You will never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant —children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thins and then disappears altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchial coughs, whooping cough and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known as the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musty and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.—Advertisement.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect, 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Sloan's Liniment Kills Pain

PLANS 6 MONTHS IN ARMY AT 19TH YEAR

By J. BART CAMPBELL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Six months' compulsory military training for every healthy American boy when he attains his nineteenth year—on the fundamental basis for genuinely preparing American manhood for the enforcement of world peace, is Representative Julius Kahn's plan for universal military training.

Trained in arms as he approached manhood, the American would be able to say to the rest of the world: "I not only want peace, but I demand it —and I mean to have it."

Only another nation has to know that Americans—millions of them—were trained from boyhood to strike hard at a foe, were fully prepared to shoot straight, 'hike' or ride hard or otherwise fight effectively—would not only create genuine preparedness—but lasting peace."

KAHN TAKES UP CUDGELS.

Representative Kahn, who is ranking Republican member of the House Military Affairs Committee, advocated this plan in taking up cudgels for the temporary American army of 27,079 officers and 509,909 men provided in the $1,117,289,460 army appropriation bill when consideration of the measure was resumed.

Kahn agreed with some of his Republican colleagues that the proposed "stop gap" army "might prove impracticable because of an insufficient number of officers and men willing to volunteer, to serve in it until the end of the demobilization period," but he declared "it ought to be at least tried out."

Compulsory military training and service were, though, the only really effective way to genuine military preparedness and usefulness, he stated emphatically. As the next chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, he would urge upon the next—the Sixty-sixth—Congress, which the Republicans will control, the passage of legislation for the compulsory military training of every American boy capable of bearing arms at the age of nineteen, he said.

SIX MONTHS OF 19TH YEAR.

Required to devote six months of his nineteenth year to military training by such legislation, Kahn explained, the American boy—"millions of them"—would grow to manhood sufficiently versed in the complex duties of the modern soldier to make him an apt factor to be reckoned with in the preservation of world peace.

"Genuine preparedness means the ability to fight effectively," Kahn continued. "Genuine preparedness is the only common sense way to discourage any battle notions any other nation may entertain in the future toward the American people.

"Any other nation would think twice before attempting to again disturb the world's peace if she knew the American was trained to fight—and willing and able to fight, if necessary, to maintain that peace we all of us so much desire.

"I hope the American people will never again see the day when they will find themselves unprepared for war but, above all, I hope they will never again find themselves unprepared to enforce peace—on a humanitarian, a sensible and unselfish and a practicable basis—not on a militaristic basis."

DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED BY WILSON

Washington, Feb. 13.—President Wilson has commuted to twenty years' imprisonment, the sentence of death imposed by court martial upon a soldier who declared he had no respect for the flag or the country, and refused to obey his superior officer. The soldier is Private Solomon Lasofsky, 12th Company, Third Training Battalion, 153rd Depot Brigade, located at Camp Dix.

NAVY YARD CLERK IS CITED, WONDERS WHY

Secretary Daniels has cited for bravery a man who has never been on a warship more than a few hours nor out of the Charlestown Navy Yard, where he is employed as a stenographer. The man is John J. McManus of No. 17 Grove street, Lynn. Congratulations are pouring in, and the only explanation is "Somebody has made a mistake!"

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR FRANCIS A. HOUSTON

Simple funeral services were held in Concord this afternoon for Francis A. Houston, former vice-president of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. The services were held in his home on Musketaquid road, and were conducted by Rev. Loren R. Macdonald, minister of the Concord First Parish Unitarian Church. Interment was in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, Concord.

500 MORE TROOPS ON STRIKE DUTY AT BUTTE

Butte, Feb. 13.—Five hundred more troops are on duty here today with machine guns attending the operation of street cars and protecting newsboys delivering newspapers. The I. W. W. sought to prevent the distribution of newspapers in an effort to keep the news of the collapse of the Seattle strike from reaching the strikers here.

400,000 JEWS TOOK UP ARMS FOR UNCLE SAM

Newark, N. J., Feb. 13.—One hundred thousand Jews were enrolled in the American army, and of that number 40,000 were volunteers, according to an announcement made before the American Jewish Historical Society here by President Cyrus Adler.

For Government Control

Concord, N. H., Feb. 13.—Representative Gallagher of Manchester has introduced a resolution in the House, calling upon the Federal government to control the railroads for five years.

SALEM HONORS GEN. EDWARDS TONIGHT

Salem, Feb. 13.—General Clarence R. Edwards, who commanded the 26th Division in France, will be the guest of honor at the Salem Chamber of Commerce banquet in the State Armory tonight. Included in the command of General Edwards was the 101st Field Artillery and Company H of the 104th Infantry which are known as Salem military units.

"A public reception will be on the program from 4 to 5 o'clock this afternoon. It will be held at the armory. A committee went to Boston in automobiles to meet the General and he will be escorted to Salem. When the party leaves Lynn a telegraphic message to that effect will be sent to Salem, following the reception of which the fire department "Liberty Call" of seven blasts will be sounded to inform the public that General Edwards will be in Salem in half an hour.

It is expected that General Edwards with his staff and the Salem Chamber of Commerce reception committee as escorts, preceded by two scout cruisers, will arrive at the State Normal School about 5 o'clock, where there will be a demonstration by the pupils.

The party then will parade down Lafayette street, to the Nathaniel Bowditch and St. Joseph's French schools, where further demonstrations will be in order.

One of the features at the reception and dinner will be a squad of forty men from Salem and vicinity who have served with the 26th Division and who were wounded and invalided home. These men will act as a guard of honor for the General during his stay in Salem.

The general committee in charge of arrangements is George S. Laporte, chairman; Harry S. Perkins, treasurer, and Albert W. Batchelder, secretary.

N. H. COMMITTEE FAVORS $50 BONUS FOR SOLDIERS

Concord, N. H., Feb. 12.—The Committee on Military Affairs has voted to report favorably on the Winn resolution to give each returning New Hampshire soldier $50. The committee stood 9 to 5. One of the three objectors was Representative James E. French of Moultonborough.

EAST BOSTON WOMAN FATALLY BURNED

Miss Mattie E. Walsh of No. 443 Meridian street, East Boston, was mortally fatally burned when her clothing caught fire from a gas stove in the basement of her home today. Mrs. Walsh ran from the house and her screams attracted passers-by, who beat out the flames. She was rushed to the Relief Hospital in a dying condition.

NAVY CURTAILS SHORE LEAVE AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Feb. 12.—The number of men of the navy on shore duty, so far as concerns men of the regular navy, will be materially curtailed, so that they may be available for duty on vessels of the navy, according to orders received from the Bureau of Navigation.

ATTLEBORO SAILOR IN SEARCH OF A WIFE

Attleboro, Feb. 12.—A sailor boy told Mrs. Mattie Cody, assistant examiner at the employment bureau for discharged soldiers and sailors, that he was looking for a wife. "One that I can keep," is the first necessary qualification, he said. She must have money, doesn't care if she has been married or not as long as she can keep a good home, and must be very near twenty-five years of age. Good looking at that. Mrs. Cody is now on the hunt for such a young lady as she promised to aid this lad in locating his heart's desire.

EXPECTED DROP IN FOOD PRICES FAILS TO MATERIALIZE

BUTTER IS HIGHER HERE

The Boston wholesale butter market stiffened today, despite the expectation of easier prices.

Both print and tub grades went up a cent in the pound from the Wednesday's wholesale quotations. Print was listed today at 51 cents a pound on the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange. Tub rose to 50.

The wholesale egg market remained the same as Wednesday. Fresh eggs (fancy nearby and Eastern extras) were quoted today at 48 to 50 cents, compared with Wednesday's quotation of 45 to 48 cents. Wednesday's storage grade was not quoted today.

No new cheese was quoted today. Old cheese (Twin extras) were quoted at 31 cents, off two cents from Wednesday. No lard was quoted on the Boston Exchange today. There was no lard quotation here Wednesday on account of the market holiday in Chicago.

The changes today from yesterday in retail prices of butter and eggs at a Faneuil Hall market and in nearby suburbs and the overnight changes in wholesale prices on the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange were as follows:

	Print butter.	Tub butter.	Fresh eggs.	Stor. eggs.

Housewives Furnish Price Lists to Help Knock Down High Costs

Greater Boston housewives are invited to send to the Boston American the prices they are charged for butter, eggs, cheese and lard. The wholesale prices in the housewives' blank are from the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange on the day cited. Retailers are also invited to send in their prices. Sample lists include:

February 11.

Name of store—E. P. Webb, grocery and bakery, No. 26 Hyde Park avenue, Forest Hills:

	Wholesale Retail price.	Feb. 10.
Print butter	65	50
Tub butter	64	49
Fresh eggs	68	49-52
Storage eggs	53	36-38
New cheese	37	32
Pure lard	30	24½

Name of customer—Mrs. J. Bedard, No. 57 Tower street, Forest Hills.

(Webb's grocery took exception today to some of the retail prices quoted by Mrs. Bedard in her housewives' list. An employe of the bakery said over the telephone that the fresh eggs, quoted at 68 cents, sold February 11 for 65 cents per dozen, were nearby hennery eggs and not the bakery 53 to 56 cents per dozen last Saturday. The retail price of new cheese the grocery put at 42 cents, and standard at 32, not 36 cents. The butter and storage egg prices given by the customer were correct, the store informant said. In regard to the prices it paid wholesale the store said it paid 56½ cents for print butter last Friday, or Saturday and 53 cents a pound for tub last Thursday, 45 cents for storage eggs, 39 cents for new cheese ten days ago and 28 cents a pound for lard about a month ago.)

Storage Stocks of Food Show Large Increase in Year

The report of the United States Bureau of Markets for February 1, issued at Washington today, reveals a tremendous increase in the amount of meats, cheese, butter and lard held in cold storage throughout the country, compared with the supply on hand February 1, 1918.

Quantities in each case are given in pounds.

	Feb. 1, 1919	Feb. 1, 1918	Increase
Beef	109,000,000	70,000,000	39,000,000
Pork	1,000,000,000	600,000,000	400,000,000
Lamb and mutton	7,000,000	4,000,000	3,000,000
Poultry	50,000,000	30,000,000	20,000,000
Miscellaneous meats	5,000,000	3,000,000	2,000,000
Total meats	1,171,000,000	707,000,000	464,000,000
Creamery butter	100,000,000	60,000,000	40,000,000
Cheese	100,000,000	60,000,000	40,000,000
Lard	200,000,000	100,000,000	100,000,000

The increase in the amount of meats held in storage February 1, 1919, compared with February 1, 1918, are disclosed in the report as follows:

	Per cent.
Frozen lamb and mutton	93.7
Frozen pork	88.8
Frozen poultry	72.8
Miscellaneous meats	71.2
Dried salt pork	39.8
Pickled pork	32.1
Frozen beef	8.4
Lard	119.2
Creamery butter	40.8
Cottage, cut and baker's cheese	100.1

Eggs, apples and American cheese showed decreases, respectively, of 28.7 per cent., 24.7 per cent. and 75.4 per cent.

POLICE WIN RACE FOR 670 QUARTS OF WHISKEY

Kennebunk, Me., Feb. 13—A five-mile automobile chase, from Wells to the end of a trap on the Boston-Portland State highway, resulted in the capture of two men, an automobile and 670 quarts of whiskey by the police here. Charles Cargo and Ralph Trotter of Haverhill, Mass., were the names given the police. They were on the way to Portland. Each furnished cash bail for their appearance before the Grand Jury.

CITIZENS' NATIONAL BANK OPENS OFFICES

Temporary offices of the newly-organized Citizens' National Bank of Boston have been organized at No. 24 Milk street. The bank has been authorized by the Comptroller of Currency, has a capital of $500,000 and a paid in surplus of $250,000. Guy A. Ham is president. The permanent location of the bank will be at No. 181 Summer street, in Dewey square.

DISCHARGING EARS

Mrs. Alice Morrissey resides at 71 Edward street, Medford. She said to the writer: "I had discharging ears for about a year. It was dreadful. I was advised to go to the Osmo-Chemic Physician by friends who had been successfully treated by these skilful physicians, and under their treatment the discharge has been effectually stopped in both ears."

NEURITIS

Dominick Flynn resides at 491 Neponset avenue, Boston. He is six feet tall, weighs 200 lbs., yet was about as helpless as a child from neuritis. He said to the writer: "The pain in my body nearly went crazy with pain in my right arm. Day and night the pain never left me. I could not take a pencil in my hand and write my own name. One family doctor said he could do nothing for me and advised electricity as the only thing that would help me. A friend who knew of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians and the good work they were doing for the sick advised me to go to them. I did so and I am going back to work again Monday after six weeks of illness."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that it has accomplished such wonderful results in diseases of the nose, throat, chest, etc., CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASES, PIMPLES, BLACKHEADS, MOLES, FACIAL BLEMISHES, ETC.

No matter what your disease may be, remember that the Osmo-Chemic doctor gives

BLAME CONSUMER FOR RISE IN FOOD PRICES

New York, Feb. 13.—Old Man Consumer got no exhuberant over the falling prices of foodstuffs recently that he unwittingly started buying more than generous amounts, and market men today blame this fact and this alone for the once more rising quotations.

Meat prices are mounting slightly, while there is a pause in the decline in butter and eggs. Potatoes and cheese, however, continue to go down.

Worcester Mayor Ill

Worcester, Feb. 13.—Mayor Fehr G. Holmes is confined to his home with a mild attack of influenza. It is believed that he will have to remain away from his office several days.

Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

TELLS SAFE AND SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, nasal phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it a pint of hot water and 4 tablespoonfuls sugar, stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Relief usually should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, choked thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there would, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless home treatment.

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil which is pure and greaseless and which is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

Just one or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

POWERS BUSY ON RUSSIAN TANGLE

Peace Delegates Striving for Improvements, Declares Dr. Dillon

By DR. E. J. DILLON,
Special Cable to the Boston American and Philadelphia Public Ledger.

(Copyright in the United States and Canada by the Philadelphia Ledger Company. Copyright in Great Britain by Daily Telegraph.)

Paris, Feb. 13.—As the necessity of concluding peace with Germany some day in the near future becomes more pressing, the allied governments are putting forth a supreme effort to render effective the policy decided upon when they publicly issued invitations to the Princes' Islands conference without having first sounded those whose acquiescence could alone have rendered it fruitful.

Remembering my own admission that no peace can be stable so long as Russia remains plunged in anarchy, they are laudably striving for a new deal of cards in eastern Europe.

I discussed Russian affairs with certain entente leaders a couple of days before the fateful step was taken, and they knew I was in closest touch with the Russian National Council here, but they neither inquired my views nor disclosed their intention.

UNOFFICIAL POURPARLERS.

Today they are exerting themselves to save their face by inducing the Russians to dispatch delegates to Princes' Islands understanding that they will not be asked to discuss matters with the Bolsheviks, nor even to meet them, but only to give information to the representatives of the allies.

Unofficial pourparlers have been opened with the Russian representatives here to see whether something could be done, if not to ease the situation in their country, at least to enable the entente representatives to close this unpleasant chapter in the history of world regeneration.

The Bolsheviks are not a political party; they are not compactly organized, and are not master even in what is supposed to be their own house. They are an imperfect organization of frenzied fanatics and bloodthirsty highwaymen, who are terrorizing the passive population, which is exhausted materially and morally by the calamities of war. They are united by no doctrine unless it be the doctrine to hold themselves justified in exterminating all who deny their claim to slay, torture, burn and destroy.

They have no government, not even such as Ghengis Ghan or Tamerlane maintained among their savage hordes. Lenine and Trotsky are not obeyed outside the city and suburbs where they reside. The Soviets of Samara, of Orenburg, of Kronstadt scoff at their authority, and they can no more make stipulations binding upon the other Soviets than they can compel obedience from the United States. Hence no compact they might make with the allied delegates would be worth the paper on which it was written.

GRAFT IS CHARGED.

Some time ago the Swedish authorities obtained authorization from the Moscow Soviet to export from Russia into Sweden certain produce which they sorely needed. Before the necessary papers could be obtained money had to be distributed to grasping officials. Then the goods were duly conveyed toward the frontier, but when they arrived in Petrograd they were arrested by the local Soviet and held up. A Swedish diplomat protested and exhibited Lenine's authorization, but the Petrograd Soviet laughed them to scorn, saying: 'Lenine's power does not extend to Petrograd. We have our own Soviet, which is independent, and if you approach it in the same spirit in which you approached the Moscow Soviet you may obtain the same result, but not otherwise.'

As the Bolsheviks have no centralized and no unified administration, how can self-respecting statesmen oppose themselves to the certain danger of being victimised by them?

One Soviet, sometimes women between the ages of eighteen and forty, another abolishes marriage and enacts free love and so on. The weather is the theory given for the cause. Traffic has been diverted over the Georgetown branch.

'Off Again, On Again,' for the 'Mc' on Sweeney

New York, Feb. 13.—It's off again, on again and so on infinitum, as far as John Sweeney's name goes. Sweeney was just plain Sweeney when he immigrated from Ireland in 1906. In order that there might not be any mistake as to his blood, however, he had a "Mc" prefixed to the name. This proved the source of unending trouble in explaining the thing to friends, so he had the law amputate the "Mc." But in the meantime he had made many friends in this country, and now he wants the "Mc" back on the theory that it will be easier than to explain it to pressure his friends that to explain its absence to his newer friends.

ALLIES PUT NEW CURB ON POWER OF GERMANS

Latter Said to Be Rendered Impotent by Conditions of Armistice Renewal

the progress made by the League of Nations commission today.

This commission met during the morning, followed this afternoon by the final session of the supreme interallied war council.

The American representatives are extremely anxious to secure interned German merchant ships, including the new Bismarck, to capture the return of United States soldiers. So far the Americans have met with some opposition from certain powers that want to utilize the German tonnage themselves for a resumption of their own commerce.

Should the commission upon the League of Nations agree completely on the constitution so that it can be ratified at a plenary session of the peace conference on Saturday, President Wilson will have the honor of moving its adoption.

Should an agreement be impossible, the President and Mrs. Wilson likely will leave Paris tomorrow night, and sail on Saturday, instead of Sunday.

If a plenary session of the peace conference is held on Saturday for ratification of the League of Nations constitution, the President will delay his departure until Monday.

ANIMATED DISCUSSION.

The discussion at the meeting of the War Council on Wednesday on Wednesday are said to have been animated. President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau took a leading part in the conversations over the terms.

The question of idealism was thoroughly threshed out, it was said. The Americans insist that the powers originally assumed he carried out completely and Germany be held to a strict accountability, but that changes in the armistice conditions be made only when justified by the reports of the economic advisers' council, which had been investigating internal conditions in Germany.

SIGN LETTERS "YOURS FOR VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN"

Sign your letters "Yours for the Victory Liberty Loan." So requests the Treasury Department.

It says the success of the coming loan rests with the people, and that each person has a personal responsibility in connection with the loan. Creation of a general sense of co-operation in the minds of the public is one way to diffuse that responsibility, the Treasury Department declares.

COLD CAUSES BRIDGE ABUTMENTS TO CRACK

Haverhill, Feb. 13.—Because of the dangerous condition of the bridge that crosses the Merrimack River at Bradford, traffic on the Western Division of the Boston & Maine Railroad was delayed. According to tests made by engineers, the granite on the easterly abutment is cracked and the cold weather is the theory given for the cause. Traffic has been diverted over the Georgetown branch.

SCHEIDEMANN FIRST GERMAN PREMIER

Gustave Noske Minister of Army and Navy in Cabinet of President Ebert

By H. J. GREENWALL.
Exclusive Cable by the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Weimar, Feb. 12 via London, Feb. 13.—Philip Scheidemann will be the first premier of Germany under President Ebert. Gustave Noske, former minister of demobilization, before that governor of Kiel, has been appointed minister of army and navy.

The other members of the cabinet follow:

Minister of Interior, Herr Preuss; Minister of Justice, Herr Landsberg; Minister of Commerce, Herr Muller; Minister of Labor, Herr Bauer; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, former German Minister to Denmark; under Foreign Minister, Von Richthofen; Minister of Finance, Herr Schiffer; Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Herr Geisberg; ministers without portfolios, Dr. Matthias Erzberger, another conservative, former State Secretary and leader of the Centrist party; Eduard David, president of the National Assembly, and Herr Wissel.

Mr. Greenwall's cablegram indicated that Herr Scheidemann had not yet been actually appointed. An Exchange Telegraph dispatch to the International News Service from Amsterdam today said that Scheidemann's appointment had formally taken place.

MOTHER, SON AND FRIEND GET LOCKWOOD'S ESTATE

New York, Feb. 12.—The will of Harold Lockwood, motion picture star, who died several weeks ago of influenza, was admitted to probate today. The will leaves a $10,000 life insurance policy each to his mother, Jennie Lockwood, and his ten-year old son, Harold, and divides the net estate of $25,000 among his mother, the son and Gladys W. Lyle, of Los Angeles, a friend.

Keep Your Hair Young

Do not allow premature grayness to rob your hair of its soft, dark, youthful lustre and beauty. Gray or faded hair deadens the most perfect complexion—makes you look older than you really are. Preserve its natural charm and loveliness by means of a few simple, harmless treatments with

Says No Dry U. S. If Congress Voted as It Drinks

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 13.—Prohibition is not the real sentiment of Congress. If Congress had voted the way it drinks, there would be no prohibition," said Congressmen Charles P. Condy of Baltimore.

"The trouble in Congress," he added, "is that many members have yielded to the threats of a bunch of narrow-gauge people who are intent on making other people do as they want them to. Many Congressmen who voted for prohibition like their liquor, but they lack the hardihood to stand up against abuse.

"Prohibition is contrary to best interests of the people at large and is calculated to do great mischief."

SPECIAL LAW IN GERMANY FOR WAR

New "Republic" Constitution Requires Legislation Before Hostilities

By International News Service.

Weimar, Feb. 12, via London, Feb. 13.—War declarations require "special legislation" under the terms of the temporary constitution which has just been adopted by the German national assembly.

Entrance of Germany into the proposed League of Nations must have the combined sanction of the national assembly and the executive committee representing the various states making up Germany.

The following is a synopsis of the constitution amended before approval Monday:

1—The assembly's object is to adopt a permanent constitution and national laws.

2—The government's proposals require the sanction of a committee representing the several free states. This committee is headed by a government minister from each state, the members from the larger states being apportioned to one vote to each 1,000,000 inhabitants.

3—The committee is entitled to address the assembly at any time.

4—The assembly will adopt a future constitution, but the territory of the free states shall not be changed except with the consent of the interested state.

5—Unimportant points are referred to the old German constitution.

6—The President will conduct the republic's affairs with authority to represent Germany in matters of international law. He will sign foreign treaties on behalf of the republic and receive ambassadors, but each declaration of war and each peace treaty requires special legislation. Foreign treaties require the combined sanction of the assembly.

7—The assembly will elect a President with an absolute majority and a term of seven years. A successor is elected.

8—The President appoints the cabinet, which will control the supreme command of the army and navy.

9—The President's military and civil orders are not valid unless countersigned by the cabinet.

10—The temporary constitution is effective immediately upon adoption.

It will be noted that the committee used the word "republic" in outlining the sixth clause of the temporary constitution, although the assembly has apparently agreed to have Germany officially known as an empire under the new government.

"Who Is That Man?"

Inquired one of our customers, as he stood spellbound, listening to Mr. Lockhart's clever talk from the pulpit we have specially erected for him over our big main aisle. We answered: "That is Mr. Lockhart, known from coast to coast as the 'Mill-End King.'" "Oh!" said the man, "I thought Lockhart was a mill." Dear reader, have you ever seen Mr. Lockhart? Have you ever heard the well-groomed "Billy Sunday," the noted evangelist, when he was thoroughly aroused over his sermon to the crowds in his great tabernacle meetings? Mr. Lockhart's speaking voice is so round, full, clear and pleasing, and is backed by such a charming personality, that thousands flock here just as they do in New York and other big cities to hear him talk. The whole staging of the Lockhart sale is so unusual, so intense, so wonderful and immense, and, withal, abounding in economy opportunities beyond our ability to picture. No matter where you trade every day, come and see an event that never has had an equal.

MAINE RESOLVE FOR VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

Augusta, Me., Feb. 13.—Senator Freman M. Stratt of Cumberland introduced a resolve today to provide funds for vocational education, providing that the State co-operate with the Federal government in the extension of instruction in home economics, agriculture and in the trades and industries in all day schools, part time and evening classes for persons over fourteen years of age who are to enter practical work in these occupations. The resolve carries an appropriation of $15,000 for 1919 and $20,000 annually thereafter.

GIRLS! TRY IT! HAVE THICK, WAVY, BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Every particle of dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine" hair cleanse—but try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides bringing the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—see—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely invest a few cents in a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter, and just try it.

Save your hair! Beautify it! You will say this was the best money you ever spent.—Advertisement.

BREAKS A COLD IN A HURRY

"Pape's Cold Compound" is pleasant and affords Instant Relief.

Catarrh Of The Stomach Is Dangerous

"Thousands Have It and Don't Know It," Says Physician. Frequently Mistaken for Indigestion—How To Recognize and Treat.

"Thousands of people suffer more or less constantly from furred, coated tongue, bad breath, sour turning stomach, frequent vomiting, rumbling in stomach, bitter eructations, gas, wind and stomach acidity and call it indigestion when in reality their trouble is catarrh—catarrh of the stomach," writes a New York physician.

Catarrh of the stomach is dangerous because the mucous membrane lining of the stomach is thickened and a coating of phlegm covers the stomach walls and digestive fluids cannot mix with the food and digest it. This mixture soon putrefies and decomposes, the fermented, unassimilated food is poisoned and irritated and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastritis, ulcers, cancer and frequently an ulcer in the first step of a deadly cancer.

In catarrh of the stomach a good and safe treatment is to get from your druggist a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of hot water and drink it; you can comfortably drink it. The hot water soaks into the mucous membrane of each walls and draws the blood to the stomach, while the Bisurated Magnesia is an excellent solvent for mucous and increases the efficiency of the internal treatment. Moreover the Bisurated Magnesia will serve as a powerful but harmless antacid which will neutralize any excess hydrochloric acid and relieve the sour stomach and sweeten its food contents. Then, after eating, take a little Bisurated Magnesia in addition to your regular meal to relieve distress of any kind. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative; it is harmless, tasteless and easy to take and can be obtained from any local druggist. Don't confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia, milks, citrates, etc., but get it in the pure granulated form (powder or tablets), especially prepared for stomach purposes.

JACK DEMPSEY SIGNING TO FIGHT JESS WILLARD

Scene from Current Issue of Screen Telegram

He will receive $27,500 for fighting the champion. The International Film Service recorded the signing of articles by Dempsey and the reel is shown in "Screen Telegram No. 7."

Jack Dempsey will be Champion Jess Willard's next opponent in the prize ring. Dempsey will receive $27,500 for fighting the champion whether he wins or loses. Willard gets $100,000 no matter what the outcome of the little battle.

Dempsey signed articles in Hoboken, N. J., a few days ago. The International Film Service was on hand to record the act on the screens and it will be shown in Screen Telegram No. 7.

There are thousands of people in this country who are endeavoring to secure passports enabling them to travel across the water and view the historic battlefields; and countless more thousands who have an equally strong desire to make the trip, but are not in a position to do so, even if passports were available. The Marne, Chateau Thierry, Belleau Wood, are names that conjure up visions of immortable brave deeds performed by our boys, and in the heart of every American, is a very natural wish to view these places the Yankee soldiers have made famous.

This opportunity is afforded them in the Screen Telegram No. 7, the news reel put out by the International Film Service and released by the Universal Film Mfg. Co. In this reel are appearing the first and exclusive pictures of the bridge over the Marne river, where the Marines broke up Hindenburg's smashing advance; German prisoners are seen cleaning up the snow on the ground where their armies suffered crushing defeat at the hands of the "Yanks."

Scenes of Chateau-Thierry, where the Americans achieved their first big victory, are shown, and a view of this historic town from the clock tower of the City Hall, where the Germans had posted machine guns in a vain effort to stop the conquering army. The American cemetery at Belleau Wood, where lie the Marine Corps heroin dead—men who did not fear to die that liberty might live—is seen, and pictures of two heroes of the Army Ambulance Corps, who risked their lives to rescue wounded soldiers under barrage fire, being decorated.

Scenes of a fire, that for a time threatened the heart of the National capital, are shown in this issue. A stubborn blaze in the New Richmond Hotel, only one block from the White House, called forth all the ingenuity and bravery of the firemen to stop it.

FINE WOMEN FOR INTIMIDATION IN LAWRENCE

ting the night visit of strikers to the homes of loyal workers for the purpose of intimidating these strikers. They planned action even more drastic than that of the police.

The afternoon came without a difficulty of any sort. There were no assaults, no intimidations, nor was there any visible picketing. The "strike cavalry," as the mounted police are known, were out in their usual numbers, but had nothing to do. No arrests were made nor were any complaints received.

STRIKER SENTENCED.

A three-months' sentenceemtwyp y

A three-months' jail sentence for intimidation was meted out today to Joseph Zappola in the district court. Zappola is the first striker to receive a jail sentence since the strike began eleven days ago.

With Frank Lowraine he went to the home of Frieda Ross, a widow with three children, and told her that if she went to work today she would not go tomorrow. They were arrested by police officers from Cambridge.

Lowraine's case was dismissed, and Zappola appealed.

Two women arrested today, Rose Smulsky and Elizabeth Matnoli, were fined $25 each. Intimidation and assault were the charges.

Jim Larkin, the Irish leader, will not return to Lawrence, according to Samuel Bramhall, chairman of the general strike committee. It is said that the warning by the citizens' committee to deport any outside agitators is responsible for Larkin's decision. Bramhall denied that the strikers would attempt to hold any parade today.

United States Immigration Commissioner H. J. Skeffington of Boston, who came here under sealed orders from the Labor Department, left town today, but is expected to return shortly to confer with the Mayor's executive committee and the general strike committee.

RETURNING TO WORK.

Police officials at the different mill gates report that a larger number of "people" went to work today than any day since the strike began. There were only a small number of pickets out and these were spread out in the vicinity of the Arlington mills and Pacific print works.

Practically all of the English speaking operatives are back at work now, but the ranks of the foreign employes still remain. It is estimated that less than 10,000 are now affected, whereas at the beginning about 15,000 were out.

BOSTON HERO 'DESERTS' TO GO TO FRONT

By BERT FORD.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army of Occupation, Coblenz, Germany, Feb. 13.—This is the story of a buck private, Frank McKay of Boston, who deserted to go to the front. He left a soft job in the service of supply to fight.

McKay is forty-eight years old, a Boston printing pressman and worked on most of the Boston papers. He is a Spanish War veteran. He came over here with the 101st Artillery, formerly commanded by Colonel John H. Sherburne, a member of the Massachusetts Legislature from Brookline, who is now in command of the entire artillery brigade of the 26th division.

Captain Guy T. Viskniskki, of Montclair, N. J., editor of the Stars and Stripes, official organ of the A. E. F., told me the yarn the other day.

McKay came to the office of the Stars and Stripes in Paris in response to an advertisement. We were shy of pressmen. McKay was just the man we needed. He had been cut from his regiment.

"Everybody liked him. They called him 'Old Timer.' He was perfectly contented and valuable. Until things began to pop at the front.

"One day I slapped him on the back during one of his reveries and said: 'Well, Mac, how would you like to be in the middle of it out there?'

"How would I like it? I'd give my hide, captain. Tough, to be tied down here with the battery in action.'

"Next day McKay disappeared. Three, four, seven days passed and he failed to report for duty. On the tenth day one of the inspecting officers threatened to prefer charges of desertion. But I told him to wait. I knew that 'Old Timer' hadn't deserted from the army. I figured that he had slipped back to his regiment and the guess was right. Mac was found working like a beaver with his battery.

"He said he couldn't stand the strain any longer, and beat his way to the old outfit. They had given him a rousing welcome. He had risked court martial to do his bit. That's the spirit that gave the punch to the A. E. F."

SIGN LETTERS "YOURS FOR VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN"

Sign your letters "Yours for the Victory Liberty Loan." So requests the Treasury Department.

It says the success of the coming loan rests with the people, and that each person has a personal responsibility in connection with the loan. Creation of a general sense of co-operation in the mind of the public is one way to discharge that responsibility, the Treasury Department declares.

Governor and Mayor Expected at Elks' Ball

Governor Coolidge and his staff and Mayor Peters are expected to attend the war relief ball of the Boston Lodge of Elks, No. 10, at the Copley-Plaza ballroom, Feb. 20. It will be the star social event of the season in local Elkdom, and will take the place of the annual charity ball.

Melvin A. Early of the executive committee is most enthusiastic over the prospected success.

A concert, in which many notable people will appear, will proceed the dancing. E. Mark Sullivan, exalted ruler, will lead the grand march.

Relieve Your Indigestion With A Laxative

Dyspeptics know that indigestion is accompanied by constipation, and that until the bowels can be regulated so they will act freely and naturally every day at a stated time, swallowing dyspepsia tablets is of little use.

A great and growing number of sufferers from this trouble find immediate and then permanent relief by the use of a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The laxative herbs act on the bowels and the pepsin and extracts on the digestive tract, forming an exceptionally effective laxative-tonic.

It is a combination that has been found wonderfully helpful in indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headaches, bad breath, belching and gas on the stomach. A small dose is all that is required.

The druggist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.

PRICE AS ALWAYS

In spite of greatly increased laboratory costs due to the War, by sacrificing profits and absorbing war taxes we have maintained the price at which this family laxative has been sold by druggists for the past 26 years. Two sizes—50c and $1.00.

LEVINSKY SHADES COFFEY IN GREAT 12-ROUND BATTLE

By NICK FLATLEY.

TWO hands are better than one, as Battling Levinsky proved in his heavyweight battle with Jim Coffey at the Armory Club. The New York veteran got the decision away from the Roscommon Giant after he had seemed to be beaten three or four times.

Mister Coffey had a left hand that moused up the Levinsky countenance like the boche shells battered the plains of Flanders.

Had said Coffey persisted in the use of the left, which he snaps straight out with a mean kick attached, he would have won beyond a doubt. But now and then he tried to work his right, and gave Bat a chance. The latter, a nifty boxer for a big fellow, kept tearing in despite his bruised map, and scored enough lefts and rights to get the award.

It was an interesting quarrel, with plenty of punishment prevailing, and the huge gladiators didn't do a bit of loafing. Coffey had the advantage in the early rounds, but grew tired at the windup, and Levinsky waded in, though he was weary himself, and got away with something.

To sum it up, Coffey showed all the promise that he did when he first flashed on the fistic screen. But he has never improved the least little bit. Evidently he hasn't the ring brains to go with his gigantic frame and natural fighting ability. While the Battling one isn't as fast as he used to be, he's still good enough to give all but the best heavyweights an interesting time of it.

Entire Card Marked by Much Lively Boxing.

THE whole card was speckled with fighting. Willie Roberts beat Young Plasse after six rounds chock full of solid thumping. Willie Coogan made up for the disappointment occasioned by the non-appearance of his deadly rival, Leahy, by flattening Kid Wolff in the fourth. This quarrel was weird and wooly, neither participant showing much knowledge of the swatting art. The Kid, who is a newcomer, went along fifty-fifty until he stopped one with his midriff and decided a dive was better than chancing another.

Willie Green got the verdict over Freddy Williams, though Willie was peppered hard at various times throughout the eight chapters. Both individuals sported Bolshevik noses at the finish, and Willie had the right side of his countenance badly split. Williams, who was an amateur a year ago, appears to be a very promising youngster. He hits well and is clever than most novices.

Regular Fight Card For Commercial Club.

SEVERAL changes have been forced on the Commercial Club for the Friday night show. Charley De Angelis and Young Veto have retired because of injuries, or something, and the card will be: Johnny Lynch and Buddy Flynn, six rounds; Johnny Grey and Dan McCormack; Young Viera and Joe Currie; Tony Marengo and Johnny Mello. The three latter bouts will be ten-rounders.

Braves Ask Chance to Start Training Early.

PRESIDENT GEO. WASH. GRANT of the Braves has applied for permission to let the Braves start Spring training prior to the 20-day limit set by the league at its recent meeting. President Ebbets of the Brooklyn Dodgers is doing the same thing. The Braves and Robins start the season April 19 here, four days before the rest of the league gets busy. The presidents will ask for the four-day extra Southern exercise, and probably get it, as they surely have a plausible argument.

The Braves have sent a contract to Pitcher Bunny Hearn, who jumped the team last season, and was suspended. He has been reinstated now, on his own application, and is anxious to sign up. Pitcher Scott, who was on the outside list, because of injuries, has been restored to grace likewise, and will make the Southern trip with the club.

Bogash and Adair to Box at Lawrence.

LAWRENCE fans, who saw some good battling at the reopening of the Unity Cycle Club last week, seem to be in for some more of the same. Barney Adair, the New York sensation, meets Louis Bogash of Bridgeport in the finale tonight. Barney has recovered from a sore hand, which he collected by sticking a couple of fingers into one of those steel doors on a Pullman car. The door, it might be mentioned, wasn't hurt a bit.

As both Adair and Bogash are active youths, the bout should result to the satisfaction of all concerned, including the managers. The semi-final will have Kid Francis and Dave Cronin going eight chapters. There will also be a couple of six-rounders.

HARVARD 1922 NINE TO PLAY ELEVEN CONTESTS

A schedule of eleven games has been arranged for the Harvard freshman baseball team. The Yale and Princeton yearlings have places on the card. The schedule:

April 26, St. Mark's, at Southboro; May 1, Cambridge Latin, at Cambridge; May 3, Pomfret, at Cambridge; May 7, Dean Academy, at Cambridge; May 10, Andover, at Cambridge; May 14, M. I. T., at Cambridge; May 17, Exeter, at Exeter; May 21, Middlesex, at Middlesex; May 24, Princeton, at Princeton; May 28, Milton, at Milton; May 31, Yale 1922, at Cambridge.

Maryland Racing April 1

New York, Feb. 12.—The Jockey Club was expected to issue the Maryland racing dates today. The curtain is to go up April 1, according to report. The gelding rule and proposed change in the scale of weights were also to come up for consideration.

Basketball News Notes

The crack Boston Y. M. C. A. team has practically arranged a three-game series with the speedy Gloucester town five.

The Roxbury Boys' Club second team, 80-90 pound class, has some open dates. The lineup: Reardon and Cleary, forwards; Sillion, center; Kilroy and Mudge, backs. Manager Benson, No. 80 Dudley street, Roxbury.

The Battery Wharf team wants games for February 22 and 23. Manager Morris A. Levine, First Naval District.

TWO AND THREE

PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER WITH "BUGS" BAER.

CHICAGO boxers will toss off a matinee for Chi Aldermen. If the politicians dope that fighting isn't brutal they will legalize it. Wow, said the fox. The lads will probably be wheeled up to the ring in polka-dotted Morris chairs and escape from their chaperons long enough to tap each other's skulls gently like a barkeep ringing up the last sale on the cash register next July. Then they will kiss and make up.

They will only need one chair in the ring between rounds, as one sapp can sit in the other cuckoo's lap.

* * *

IF one soft boiled bird suddenly remembers that he is in Chicago where one shave dulls four razors and hauls off and slams the other fish for a row of Tasmanian milestones, the Aldermen will undoubtedly give boxing the thumbs south sign.

The politicians can turn the old brew into Beevo. But they can't turn a punch on the nose into a cluster of lilies-of-the-valley. Ever since Cain got clubby with Abel, a clout on the beezer has been the accepted method of counting votes wherever six-ounce English is spoken or German prohibited.

If the only way of legalizing boxing in Chicago is by putting on an exhibition that ain't worth legalizing, then we don't blame Columbus' sailors for wanting to turn back.

* * *

WELLINGTON chirped that the Scuffle of Waterloo was won on the cricket fields of England. It was in before it started. And Uncle Sam had Berlin in his pocket because every bird who lift the Rhine bit it with both mitts. What Chicago bug wants to drag himself away from some of his taxable income for the Brivilege of watching two gappers make enough motions to knit a pair of sox without slapping each other hard enough to crash a dimple in a pound of oleomargarine?

* * *

NEW YORK is in the same gondola as Chicago. The boarders up at Albany want to see an exhibition with the padded chin bumpers. If nobody is bumped hard enough to knock a canary bird off his perch, boxing will be legal. Provided that neither contestant tries to dot the other bird's eye or punctuates his conversation with an overhand period to the nose.

Knocking the other gent colder than yesterday's soup isn't necessarily boxing. But neither is the kind of stuff the Chicago Aldermen want to wish on us. The place for that stuff is the parlor sofa, and not the ring. Yea bo! First thing you know one of Chicago's fighters will be taking off his glove in the third round so that the other scrapper can put an engagement ring on his little finger. Can you beat it?

* * *

WHEN the troop trains skedaddled through Arkansaw on their way north from the Mexican border a few stanzas ago, a tall hick loitered around the only station in Arkansaw where the trains stopped. This seed was so thin that he only had room for one shoulder blade. He was on hand that Adam's apple looked like a sparrow on a church steeple. He staked the boys to black bottles at three buttons a quart and told 'em not to open the glue pot until the train escaped from Arkansaw. The boys smuggled the joy powders into the next States and when they unhooked the bottles they discovered they were boying the Arkansaw River at three berries a gurgle.

Something like boxing. If we smuggle that stuff back into power again and then discover that it ain't got any more kick than river water the biscuits are going to be burned.

Anything they charge to see one of those tap-tapper boxing exhibitions is too much. The bugs don't want to see two scrappers fight. They want to hear 'em battle.

Joe Stecker Meets Martinson on Mat Tonight

Joe Stecher and Paul Martinson are reported to be in fine shape for their mat battle at the Grand Opera House tonight. Both wrestling fans are anxious to see if Stecher can clamp his deadly "scissors-hold" on the Chicago star, or if the latter is right in his claim that he has a perfect defence for the hold.

Stecher says he will do the trick while Martinson is equally positive Joe is fooling himself. They are to go best two out of three, preceded by the usual preliminaries.

BOBBY GROSS BECOMES TWO-LETTER ATHLETE

Captain Bobby Gross of Harvard's varsity hockey seven becomes a two-letter man by gaining his ice insignia. In addition to the West Newton boy, those receiving their hockey letters are T. M. Avery, Francis Bacon, Edward Bigelow, Alexander Bright, Roger Buntin, Edward Cabot, C. A. Clark, F. C. Church, Jabish Holmes, Henry Snelling, Norman Walker, Henry White and Edmund Pavenstedt.

Game at Boston Y. M. C. A.

The Boston Y. M. C. A. and Battery Wharf basketball teams come together on the latter's floor tonight. The game promises to be one of the banner ones of the season. Play at 8 o'clock.

Middlesex Crews Planning for Big Season

The schedule for the Middlesex School first and second four-oared crews, as well as the school eight, was announced today by Manager John R. Paine. The same crews will be rowed over the half-mile course at Baker-ness Pond.

Dr. R. Heber Howe, Jr., of the faculty, is again serving as the coach, and already has the candidates working out on the machines in the school gymnasium. The season will be formally opened early in April, with the annual races between the Assabet and Sudbury Club crews. The schedules:

FIRST FOUR-OARED CREW.

April 26, Charle School, at Wallingford, Ct.
May 10, Alumni, at Bateman's Pond; May 24, Exeter Academy, at Bateman's Pond; May 31, Pomfret School, at Pomfret, Ct.

SECOND FOUR-OARED CREW.

May 3, Boston College High, at Bateman's Pond; May 17, Taber Academy, at Bateman's Pond; May 24, Exeter Academy, at Bateman's Pond; May 31, Pomfret School, at Pomfret.

FIRST EIGHT-OARED CREW.

May 21, Tech., on Charles River.

JIMMY WILDE AND PALS THROUGH ARMY DUTIES

London, Feb. 12.—Most of the well-known English boxers, who served with the army gymnastic staff during the war, teaching the Tommies how to use their fists in close-up combat, have been demobilized. They include Jimmy Wilde, Johnny Basham, Pat O'Keefe and Jem Driscoll.

OLD "FED" CASE DISCUSSED BY GAME'S HEADS

New York, Feb. 12.—John A. Heydler, president of the National League, and H. H. Johnson, chief executive of the American League, held a baseball powwow here, discussing at length the suit of the directors of the former Baltimore (Federal League) club against the two major leagues and several promoters of the defunct "outlaw" league.

The suit is for $300,000 and is based on allegations of conspiracy. The plaintiffs claim they were victimized when the treaty between the Federal League and the majors was signed three years ago.

The case was withdrawn in 1917, but has been reopened in a United States District Court. It comes up for trial March 10.

Heydler made arrangements for defence while in Washington, where he conferred with President Benjamin Minor of the Washington club.

Decision on the question of a new chairman of the National Baseball Commission is expected to be reached, while Johnson is in this city. William F. Baker, Charles H. Ebbets and Barney Dreyfuss are the most active in the National League for a new chairman to replace Herrmann.

B. C. SWITCHES LINEUP FOR NAVY YARD GAME

The speedy Boston College hockey team was to meet the Charlestown Navy Yard seven this afternoon on Bullough's Pond, Newtonville. Captain Dido Falvey has produced a strong and smooth-working combination by shifting Hughes to centre and going to the point position himself.

Dooley, formerly of Brookline High, and Frank Ryan, who used to shine on the Latin School seven, are also wishing a close contest for work at rover.

RALPH WINSOR DRILLING HARVARD HOCKEY TEAM

Ralph Winsor, Harvard's former hockey coach, and in command for thirteen years, is to help develop the Crimson seven for its game with St. Paul's School Saturday as well as the encounter with Princeton a week later. Jack Hutchinson of the B. A. A. is also helping out.

Derby at Churchill Downs

Louisville, Feb. 12.—Both the Kentucky Derby and Kentucky Handicap will be run off at Churchill Downs in the Spring. Spring racing dates at Douglas Park have been canceled and nine days added to the Churchill Downs session. The meeting opens May 10.

"Your Nose Knows"

All smoking tobaccos use some flavoring. The Encyclopaedia Britannica says about the manufacture of smoking tobacco, "...on the Continent and in America certain 'sauces' are employed ...the use of the 'sauces' is to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves." Tuxedo uses chocolate—the purest, most wholesome and delicious of all flavorings! Everybody likes chocolate—we all know that chocolate added to anything as a flavoring always makes that thing still more enjoyable. That is why a dash of chocolate, added to the most carefully selected and properly aged burley tobacco, makes Tuxedo more enjoyable —"Your Nose Knows."

Try This Test: Rub a little Tuxedo briskly in the palm of your hand to bring out its full aroma. Then smell it deep—its delicious, pure fragrance will convince you. Try this test with any other tobacco and we will let Tuxedo stand or fall on your judgment—

This Day in History—February 13, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the birth in 1718 of John Hunter, one of the greatest of surgeons and anatomists. Self-educated, he dissected over 500 species of animals. He first discovered the principle of compensatory development of blood vessels under the stimulus of necessity. The story of his career reads like a romance.

Saturn on His Throne

THE ringed planet Saturn, representing in mythology the Father of the Gods, and in astronomy ranking alone and unique because of his strange, glowing rings, occupies the throne of the sky, the highest planetary seat on the meridian, about midnight. He is in Leo, nearly 50 degrees east of Jupiter. The rings are very beautiful in a telescope.

The Belle of New York

AN ABSORBING NEW MOTION SERIAL

Marion Davies Featured as the Beautiful Violet Gray in This Story of Love and Business

By Jane McLean

(Novelized from the Motion Picture, "The Belle of New York," produced under the personal direction of Julian Stringer and released by Select Pictures Corporation.)

"FROM that devil of a son, I bet." Mr. Bronson took the envelope, pinned it open and read—then he exploded. "Well, of all the nerve. He wants another twenty-five thousand—it's time he was home—has been away long enough—but nuts will be boys. I'll give him another few weeks and then back he comes to work—send him a credit for another thousand, Harding, and no more."

The lawyer nodded and left the room. The head of the big worsted walked to the window and stared into the shadows. He seemed to see a pale face with white hair and tremulous lips forming the word "thief." Bronson shook his head savagely and turned back to the light.

"He got all he was worth," he muttered; "without me he couldn't have done anything." And placating his small remnant of conscience with this emphasis he went home and slept as calmly as though he had given the inventor a half interest in the transformer.

Jack Bronson on his arrival in New York had taken his father at his word and proceeded to have his fling in a way that would have made the elder Bronson stare.

"In the first place," he said to Sandy, "we'll bust up a small apartment—living in a hotel gets tiresome. I leave it to you, Gimlet, and if you can stay sober long enough and keep yourself from celebrating any birthdays, past, present or to come, I have full faith in your taste."

The butler-valet's choice of rooms was perfectly satisfactory. Young Mr. Bronson with an unlimited money supply, an abundance of health and a ripe desire to see and be seen, got to be known as very sociably as one of the real things that every so often drop in on New York from the West.

Friends by Score

And friends—he had friends by the score—he might have had them by the thousands—all he needed was time to get acquainted, and he made merry by day and night, while the delighted Sandy, freed from the restraint of the eagle eye of Bronson, Sr., did his best into a state of perpetual intoxication.

It wasn't at all strange that Jack Bronson and Violet Gray, whose life threads were bound together, should never have met in the metropolis. Violet was busy night and day writing to her father assuring increasing confidence in her success.

She had blossomed into greater beauty than ever, and Signor Cudia hoped to surprise Mr. Gray with her progress.

She was practicing scales the morning following her father's death when a telegram announced the fact. She had not seen Mr. Gray for two years, and had hurried to the gabled house on Tenth street.

Premonition had warned her that she would never see her beloved father alive and her fears were realized when she saw the house empty on the door. Sympathetic neighbors helped her through her trouble. And she tried to bear her burden as best she could.

But it was with a heavy heart that she packed up the few belongings that had grown so dear to her, sent them to storage, and then face to face with the need for money she began to investigate her father's affairs. All that she knew was that Mr. Gray had taken up the position of transformer to the head of the great electrical works. And to the office Violet went when the offices of the gabled house had been settled.

William Bronson received her coldly—taunted a little when he discovered that she was the daughter of one so insistent and then prepared to hasten the girl out.

Her manner was polite but firm. "Mr. Bronson," she said, "my father brought you his plans for the invention on which he had worked all his life. He had perfect faith in you and left everything in your hands. His death has made me dependent on his share of the investment and I don't even know what that share is."

"Nothing," Bronson sprowled as he said it. "Miss Gray, your father brought me a lot of plans which were worthless — I had to perfect them at my expense — a great expense — I paid your father well for the time he was here and I notified him when I was through with his services."

Claims Patents

"But the patents," insisted the girl.

"Are mine," said Bronson. "They are in my name. Miss Gray—your father must have misled you. I'm sorry, but such is the case."

All the time he was speaking the girl's eyes never left his face—instinctively she knew he was lying, and he knew that she knew it.

"No, Mr. Bronson, YOU are mistaken—and you are a thief—you stole those plans and patented them in your own name. Why, if they were really worthless, you are a thief of the worst kind."

"You dare!" bellowed Bronson, shaking his fist at her.

"I dare," she answered calmly. "You are a thief and a bully and no life shall be devoted to seeing that you pay for the wrong you have done. Now I see you and look at you, and hear you, I am just as sure you killed my father as if you had shot him in the back."

The man with the bull neck and the heavy jaw burst into a raucous laugh. The idea of any injury coming from the girl before him was too absurd for serious consideration.

He recovered his poise and pointed to the door. "Get out, baby talk is cheap, good afternoon."

And not after she had gone her face haunted him. He consoled himself with stock phrases such as he always used to cover up questionable transactions. "Thought she would blackmail me, did she? They're all alike—I know 'em!" He paced the floor, and soon he had spend his life on the thing—where could he have landed if it hadn't been for me—nowhere! And then the girl some money—that's it—a check endorsed payment in full—a fools!"

Violet Gray's trip back to New York was far different from the one of these few short weeks ago. There was no devoted father to hail her Godspeed and no pleasant dream of a reunion.

And her voice—could it support her? Could the branch out without further study and make enough to pay for its further cultivation? She realized that she had stepped over the threshold of girlhood into the wider world of womanhood. She knew only too well that money was the open sesame in the magic metropolis—never as great as talent, and she was not foolish enough to believe herself possessed of a voice like Melba's.

Heard Her Story

Signor Cudia hear her story with all the sympathy of his Italian temperament. He would do what he could. He would ask a friend who had opportunities for really good voices to hear her sing, and if he was pleased—well—who could tell?

He was as good as his word. The hearer was immensely pleased, and, seeing in Violet a striking, beauty and youth unspoiled, laid his plans to kill two birds with one stone.

"You sing admirably," he told Violet. "Now, perhaps the maestro has told you—he is also the producer of 'New York Nights.' Would you like a part? I am perfectly frank. I would feature you as "The Belle of New York," keep your identity a secret, and give you a chance to sing some of the delightful little songs which you render so well."

Violet looked at Signor Cudia. He smiled and nodded approval.

"You does not go into grand opera after a few months' training," he said, "and one must live."

The inference was plain. The girl knew that he spoke with the kindest motives. And, after all, why should she hesitate? To be sure, the chance thus offered was far different from the opportunity she had pictured.

She accepted and hardly heard the salary—generous for a beginner and more than enough to keep her in the comfortable surroundings she already knew. She was to report for rehearsal the following morning.

Signor Cudia applauded her decision. "The great thing is work," he said, as he shook hands, "and even if one is a genius, it is still work."

A Home Made Gray Hair Remedy

Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

Mereh get a box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Then at 8 p. m. dissolve an Orlex Pearl Tablet and comb it through the hair. Directions for mixing and use come in each box.

You need not hesitate to use Orlex, as a $100.00 gold bond comes in each box guaranteeing the user that Orlex powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphur, mercury, aniline, coal-tar products or their derivatives.

It does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a dark-haired person look twenty years younger.—Advertisement.

Quick, Safe Way to Remove Hairs

(Toilet Talks)

Keep a little delatone powder on your dressing table, and when ugly, hairy growths appear make a paste with a little of the powder and some water, apply and let remain on the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. This treatment is quite harmless and rarely more than one application is required, but to avoid disappointment care should be used to buy the real delatone.—Advertisement.

The Dance as an Aid to Perfect Health

The Morgan Dancers Now Appearing in a Novel Interpretation of One of Their Own Conceptions

This is a group of California school girls representing Roman maidens in the time of Attila the Hun. Mrs. Marion Morgan, their physical culture instructor, organized them into a group of dancers who visit colleges and drawing rooms to give exhibitions of classic dancing. Mrs. Morgan points to the fact that all her pupils are devoted to out-of-door life. She says that they represent the new feminine figure, which, because of extreme agility, is taking on more beautiful lines.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

MILDRED BRENT was pretty under all circumstances. Arthur Bronson thought her pretty when ever she was viewing.

She did not open the front door for him, but stood waiting while Katie answered his ring. She had given orders that her guest was to be ushered into the library.

She was standing in front of the fireplace as he entered, and the ruddy glow brought a richer color to her cheeks, and her eyes reflected the leaping flame.

The greeting was not very cold, but there was a chill in the air. The furnace fire had been allowed to go out, now that Spring was really here. The open fire was becoming, and Mildred Brent knew this. That was why she had thrown on an clothing as she heard the door-bell ring.

"Mildred!" Arthur exclaimed, hurrying forward and seizing her outstretched hand. "You are expecting me?"

"Yes," she answered. "Honora told me you were coming. She also told me of the walk you and she took. I almost envied her."

"Why?" he asked.

"Because it was such a lovely afternoon," she replied demurely, "and I had to sit and work in a stuffy old office."

"It is a shame," he sympathized. "If I had my way you would never have to work."

"I wish you had your way, then," she laughed. "I like my job fairly well; at least, I like the independence it gives me, but in the Spring I get a bit tired of it."

A Challenge

"I am afraid you do not wish I had my way in everything," the man ventured.

"Why not?" she challenged.

"Because," taking her hand, "if I had my way you would give me the right to care for you."

She let her hand lie in his and kept her face averted.

"Mildred," he pleaded. "Is there any chance that you will ever learn to care for me?"

"Are you sure you care for me?" she murmured.

With a vain woman's desire for power she longed to hear him declare his affection.

"Am I sure?" he repeated. "Can you doubt it? You know I love you, Mildred. Why do you pretend not to know it?"

The telephone bell broke in sharply upon the silence following this speech. Neither spoke as Katie went to answer it.

"It's for you, Miss Mildred," she announced.

"Excuse me," Mildred said hastily, hurrying out into the hall.

She was not sorry for the interruption. Uncertainty would only wheel her suitor's desire to learn the truth.

It was Tom Chandler's voice at the other end of the wire, and she grasped the receiver in a nervous grip.

"What is it?" she inquired coldly. "I want to know when I can come up, my dear," the man said. She noticed that his voice was thicker and that he slurred his consonants. Had he been drinking again? "It's going to be a fine afternoon, and I've been mighty busy. I was out of town on business on Sunday and worked every hour, so that I got no rest at all."

"I saw you," she remarked unsequely.

"Saw me? Where?"

A Frank Discussion

"On the 6 o'clock train last night. I sat behind you."

She knew that the blow went straight home. Yet Tom tried to laugh.

"You're off," he muttered. "I wasn't there."

"Good-by," she said in frigid accents.

"I say!" he protested. "What's the matter? I admit I was there, but what if I was? A fellow's got a right to go where he pleases and with anybody he pleases, hasn't he?"

Resignation.

"I do hate soap, nurse!" said the young lady of the family. "Why do they put soap on you?"

"You don't want to be a dirty girl, do you, dearie?" remonstrated the nurse.

"Well, birds, horses, elephants and all the other things don't have soap, but are clean."

Nurse was taken completely by surprise, and was speechless for a few moments.

"Of course, I haven't a bill or a tongue to lick myself clean, as they have, so I suppose I shall have to put up with it."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To freshen a carpet, rub over with a cloth wrung out in a pail of cold water to which has been added a tablespoonful of vinegar.

* * *

When grease spots appear on the wallpaper, lay some paper over them and pass a hot iron over it. Fresh paper may be needed several times if the spot is large.

* * *

After washing flannel or woolen goods, dry them as quickly as possible, preferably in a fairly strong wind. This will go a long way toward preventing them from shrinking.

* * *

To clean the leaves of house plants, apply equal parts of milk and lukewarm water gently with a sponge. This should be done at least once a week to keep the plants in good condition.

PART XII.—Continued

THAT damnable cult, which eventually buried Russia to her doom, was fast spreading in Petrograd and Moscow. "The evil tongue of gossip is everywhere," I went on. "If I were you I would not give ear to those scandal-mongering tongues. We have them in every hour of our life at court. You are devoted to your wife, therefore why trouble?"

"The reason I trouble is because Her Majesty hates me!" he declared. "I am an officer of Russia, and will lay down my life in my country's service. Why should Her Majesty hate me?"

"My dear lieutenant," I said, as together we halted at the edge of those wonderful fountains, "I don't think you misjudge Her Majesty. She surely does not hate you, because, after all, she scarcely knows you. You have been received by her only twice, and then amid a crowd of others. No," I laughed, "your really should not entertain such ideas. They are very foolish."

And with that I reassured him, and presently we walked back to the Palace.

An hour later I had to drive out with the Empress, and as we were in the carriage going towards Sergievo, where Her Majesty was to pay a visit to the great asylum for Russian orphans of which she is patroness, she turned to me, saying suddenly:

"From my window I saw you walking with Lieutenant Vyrubova, Zeneide. What did he say?" and she looked me full in the eyes.

"Nothing in particular, save that he believes you entertain a dislike of mine," I replied quite frankly.

"And the fellow is not incorrect in his surmise," she almost snapped. "I don't like him at all. Anna ought never to have married him — never!"

"And yet I believe they are very devoted to each other," I remarked.

"Yes; but that silly romance will soon end, you will see!" and the Empress looked mysteriously at me. It, I believe, almost tired of him. At least, I do hope she is!"

And with that the subject dropped. Yet why, I wondered, did the Empress entertain such a violent antipathy towards the good-looking officer who had become the husband of her favorite lady-in-waiting? Some kind person had evidently informed Vyrubova of his wife's friendship with Rasputin, a fact which he only half believed, and which I had done my best to disountenance.

That night, after dinner, I was reading some correspondence to Her Majesty, when suddenly she exclaimed:

"Ah! I have just remembered, Admiral Smolensko is having audience of Nikki, Zeneide. Please ring the bell."

In answer to my summons one of the imperial footmen appeared, and to the man she gave orders to take a message to the admiral—who was in the Emperor's private cabinet—that she wished to receive him after his audience was over.

A quarter of an hour later the grey-bearded minister of marine, brilliant in his naval uniform and decorations, bowed himself into the room. Her Majesty motioned him to be seated, and, after making herself excessively agreeable to him, said:

"I wish you to make an appointment, admiral. You know that some time ago my lady-in-waiting, Anna Taneief, married a lieutenant in the naval service named Vyrubova."

"Perfectly, Your Majesty."

"Well, strictly between ourselves, they do not get on very well together, and I think it would be best for both if—well, if the lieutenant went on foreign service. Is there some ship going to the Atlantic or the Pacific to which he might be sent—on promotion, of course?"

The admiral reflected for a moment.

"Yes. There is the cruiser Oserki due to leave for Plymouth in a couple of days."

"Then appoint him to her," suggested Her Majesty. "Where does the ship go afterwards?"

"Probably to the Pacific—unless we give her sealed orders."

"Excellent!" exclaimed Alexandra Feodorovna. "Give the captain sealed orders, and let him not open them till he has been at sea a week or so accordingly. It was an opportune marriage, Admiral—very unfortunate!" and the Empress declared with a sigh.

I knew that she was not speaking the truth, for husband and wife were devoted to each other. Only that very night Madame Anna, who had been given a pretty datcha, or villa, in the park, had obtained leave to go with her husband to Petrograd.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people throughout the entire country, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him from every state and we will send your confidence similar to the following:

Dr. Lewis Baker, Dear Sir:—I have been taking the endomene tablets for the past month. They certainly have done wonders for me, as I was so nervous I scarcely was able to do my own housework. I was so sick and miserable. Now I can do all my own work and feel good all the time. My daughter and her husband have also been taking them and they both wonderfully.

Respectfully,
MRS. A. E. HAGER.

Stocks Buoyant and Show Good Gains at Midday

STOCKS TOUCH BEST MARK SINCE 1917

Number of Other Issues Reach Their Highest Price for This Year

Stock on the New York market rose still higher the afternoon. A number of issues went to their highest price since 1917 and some went to their highest price this year.

American Woolens, Mallets and Royal Dutch were among those that steadily rose from the opening of the market. The market was strong and active.

Copper and rails were higher but dull, the trading was quiet. Tobacco Products made a new high record at 93¾, and the preferred also made a record at 105.

Kennecott was a weak copper. Marine issues were strong, the preferred stock rising over three points. Distillers was active.

GAINS RECORDED.

U. S. Steel was up 1¾ at 90¾ after touching 90⅝. Other gains were: Bethlehem B 1½ at 61¾, Baldwin Locomotive 1 at 72½, American Steel Foundries 2¾ at 76¾, American Car and Foundry 1½ at 88⅞, Anaconda ¾ at 51¾, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe ¾ at 39¾, Reading ¾ at 78⅝, Union Pacific 1¼ at 127⅜, Tobacco Products ¾ at 93¾, Studebaker 2 at 83, Royal Dutch 4 at 95¾, Mexican Petroleum 4¼ at 172¼. Marine preferred 3 at 93¾, Distillers 1¾ at 57, and Kelly-Springfield 2¾ at 83¾.

The losses were: Cuba Cane Sugar, 1¼ at 29⅜; Kennecott, ¾ at 36½, and Chesapeake & Ohio, ½ at 64¾.

Where Fairbanks and Wright Company were the most active stocks in Boston, the gains included: Fairbanks 1¾ at the Stewart Company, 1¾ at 39½; Swift & Co., at 2½; Copper Range, ¾ at 49¾, and Massachusetts Electric preferred, ½ at 15.

United Fruit was off ¾ at 144½; Tide Royal, ¼, at 97, and American Telephone, ¾ at 101¾.

STEVETSON BULLISH.

With the opinions following the close of the market on Tuesday that the situation was fairly bullish and the rumor made in many circles that the short interest had been put into an extremely vulnerable position through its constant sales ever since the signing of the United States Steel dividend last October, and that in consequence the bull position has been so extended it made it very hard for those who had been active on the bear side for over shorts even at material advances in present prices.

STOCK LOAN.

Seeking of authority by Secretary ass from Congress to issue, if necessary, $10,000,000,000 Liberty bonds and $10,000,000,000 treasury certificates or notes maturing within five years has revived the discussion of the nature and effect of the forthcoming government financing. Apparently from the authority sought at least a portion of the government financing possibly not the next issue, however, is to be shortterm, as intimated some weeks ago.

The new government loan will in all probability not be any larger than has already been anticipated.

With present legislation and the situation in France there is also noticed a change in the speculative mood attracting attention once more to war stocks, and not only causing a lull of selling in those stocks, but brought in an urgent demand in some issues, with wire concerns buying on an increased scale during the early part of the week.

GILLETTE RAZOR REPORT.

The Gillette Safety Razor Company report, issued today, shows an income of $648,854, or 14 per cent. The fraction of razors for the past year totaled to 4,580,987, against 1,094,-

In the preceding year, a gain of 3,895, or 318 per cent., while 8,-281 dozens of blades were produced, an increase of 2 per cent. The earnings on the outstanding capitalstock for last year are equivalent to $2.55 per share, as compared with 28 in the previous twelve months. At a recent meeting of the stockholders of the Cuba Cane Sugar it was stated that the directors would deem it advisable to issue the entire $25,-000,000 bonds authorized very soon.

Liverpool Cotton Market

Spots opened quiet; prices steady. Sales 1,000 bales; receipts 14,000 bales, including 4,400 American. Good middlings 17.76d; middlings 17.13d.

Futures opened steady.

12:45 p. m. American middlings 18.44d; good middlings 17.76d; middlings 17.13d; low middlings 16d; good ordinary 14.56d; ordinary 14.03d.

BUSINESS BOOM IN SPRING, SAYS REDFIELD

Buy Only What You Need, but Buy It Now, Secretary Tells Dry Goods Men

New York, Feb. 13.—In an address before the National Retail Dry Goods Association, William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce, said:

When the war ended there were certain among us who seemed to think all that America had to do was to go forth into the world "conquering and to conquer" and to take up again the thread of our business life separated from other nations.

It did not take long, however, to find that this could not be done.

We had been saving food that others might have sufficient to eat. This was a novel sacrifice, but one we met in a fine unselfish spirit. We found, when the war ended, that we still had to feed others and on a larger scale than ever before. Fortunately our own thrift and energy had so developed our stores of food that we had and have abundance and to spare. The problem of food, however, merged quickly into another—that of ships—for to send twenty million tons of food ahead as we must in this current present year and to supply a large army over there and to bring that army over here during the year means ships and yet again ships, and still more ships, and we have not sufficient ships and shall not have for some time to come to do these great tasks ourselves.

On top of this there comes a growing demand from those countries we have been associated in the war for materials, tools and equipment with which to rehabilitate wasted homes and factories.

BIG PROBLEMS AHEAD.

These problems again merge themselves together and are difficult as any, namely that of finance. The world owes up largely, very largely.

The nations of the world are not able to pay in cash. The opportunity for services is only open to part of them, not in sufficient part to those. They must pay us partly at least in goods. Furthermore, in order to pay for these goods they must be careful not to acquire further great debts, and so called nations that Great Britain has recently established, concerning which some comment is here made, appears.

It would not perhaps be unfair to remind ourselves, even we complain of this embargo, that we have ourselves recently established, not a temporary, but a permanent embargo against certain lines of manufactures in which Great Britain and France have both done hundreds of years before us.

COTTON MARKET OPENS FIRM

New York, Feb. 13.—The cotton market opened firm today and first prices were 2 to 33 points net higher. The list continued its course upward after the call on buying by New Orleans following a strong opening there. Liverpool purchased the near months and sold the late positions. Wall Street was a heavy seller. Shorts were large buyers, and at the end of the first quarter of an hour prices were strong and about fifty points above Tuesday's close.

PROFIT SHARING AS CURE FOR RADICALISM

By A. B. GARRETSON,
President of the Order of Railway Conductors.

(Written Especially for Universal Service.)

Washington, Feb. 13.—It is fashionable to talk about the extermination of the principle and the existence of the Bolshevik or of the I. W. W. or of kindred associations, but they are none the less a factor to be reckoned with and they cannot be abolished by repressive legislation, and they will never be disposed of until there is an intelligent, honest and sympathetic effort made to study the causes which brought them into existence and their existence is, in itself, evidence of the need for their condemn their methods, disagree with their object and denounce their activities, an indictment of the social system which brought them into being. As long as it is possible for the fruits of the labor of a hundred million men to be concentrated in the hands of a half-million, and used by them without regard to the interests of all concerned, so long will one million other men striving with equally honest purpose to acquire competence, find it hard to succeed in gaining more existence, and many of them not even able to acquire the bare necessities, let alone the comforts or luxuries of life, condemnation is not an answer.

THE BEST EVIDENCE.

The best effort to remove the cause is the best evidence of an interest for the common good of mankind.

The great body of the laboring men of America are as much at variance with the methods of the organizations named as are the citizens in any other class, but at the same time they are not unmindful of the conditions, which plead, not as justification for the methods of these organizations, but which stand out as an explanation and an excuse for many acts that are not upon any ground justifiable.

It is incumbent upon every class of citizens, no matter whether aligned with the capitalist, the employing classes or the unemployed classes, to approach a settlement of these questions, not bounded by the narrow channels of self-interest, but impelled by the broader sense of citizenship and until it is approached in that spirit the element of danger will not be eliminated.

FOR PROFIT SHARING.

It is in the spirit of good citizenship that we, dealing with the social problems that confront not only America, but the world, have championed the introduction into the management of the greatest industry on the continent, namely the railways, a policy which embodies a real share in profit-sharing that will go far, in our opinion, to remove one of the most vital causes of industrial unrest, which now exist, so far as our own craft is concerned, and which in our opinion, if adopted by the government, would by the force of its example, leave its impress on the industrial world.

MUSICAL COMEDY MOVES RAPIDLY AT SHUBERT

"Take It From Me" Abounds in Brisk and Catchy Tunes

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Another musical comedy with a confidential title is "Take It from Me," a piece in a prologue and two acts, book and lyrics by Will Johnstone, music by Will R. Anderson, now at the Shubert.

The entertainment brings back to Boston that excellent singer and picturesque personality Vera Michelena in the not exactly novel role of a movie vampire.

According to the plot Tom Eggett, a thoroughly useless young man, is placed in charge of a department store by a deceased but imbecile uncle, who hopes he can make it pay in a year.

Assisted by two friends, one a fat book maker and the other a dancing idiot, Tommie makes the try.

MAKES DARING INNOVATIONS.

He makes many daring innovations in the department store and is assisted by a pretty stenographer he wins out at exactly one minute before the final curtain.

"Take It From Me" is more like a burlesque than an operetta. Its comedy is crude and rough, but sufficiently funny to give the average audience their money's worth of laughing.

The music is brisk and catchy and the action has the merit of moving rapidly. In fact, most of the artists wear roller skates.

Jack McGowan, a stranger to me, plays the leading part, that of the young merchant. He gives promise of developing into a good comedian.

Charles Welsh Homer and A. Douglas Leavitt were his companions in merriment.

GETS FUN OUT OF ROLE.

Alice Hills, who can do eccentric old maids better than anybody else on the stage, gets a lot of fun out of Ella, the superannuated stenographer.

Harry Burnham was a wizard on roller skates. Helen Raftery was effective in a lot of good clothes as a well developed fiancee. William Halfour did admirable work as the heavy villain of the musical comedy style.

Edwin Markham's Protest

Edwin Markham stood looking one day at a famous painting by Millet of a man in a plowed field who leaned upon his hoe for a moment's rest from his labor.

The marvelous skill of the great artist had caught that peculiar blankness which usually overcasts the face of the unlettered man whom long hours of dull toil have denied the variety of interests and pleasures which quicken life and make it shine forth from the countenance. For him all the wonderful things which have flowed from the advancement of the arts and sciences meant nothing. The progress of civilization had not been permitted to touch him at all. The mark of a slave was on him, and he was a slave in fact, if not in law.

The poet's soul was filled with anger and revolt against the social, political and economic system which produced this man. He poured forth his protest in one of the greatest poems of the century. We quote it here because, though written more than twenty years ago, it is strangely prophetic of what is occurring in Russia today and what will occur elsewhere tomorrow if the poet's warning is not needed in time.

God made man in His own image,
In the image of God made He him.—Genesis.

THE MAN WITH THE HOE.

Bowed by the weight of centuries he leans
Upon his hoe and gazes on the ground,
The emptiness of ages in his face,
And on his back the burden of the world.
Who made him dead to rapture and despair,
A thing that grieves not and that never hopes.
Stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox?
Who loosened and let down this brutal jaw?
Whose was the hand that slanted back this brow?
Whose breath blew out the light within his brain?

Is this the Thing the Lord God made and gave
To have dominion over sea and land;
To trace the stars and search the heavens for power;
To feel the passion of Eternity?
Is this the Dream He dreamed who shaped the suns
And marked their ways upon the ancient deep?
Down all the stretch of Hell to its last gulf
There is no shape more terrible than this—
More tongued with censure of the world's blind greed—
More filled with signs and portents for the soul—
More fraught with menace to the universe.

What gulfs between him and the seraphim!
Slave of the wheel of labor, what to him
Are Plato and the swing of Pleiades?
What the long reaches of the peakes of song.
The rift of dawn. the reddening of the rose?
Through this dread shaped the suffering ages look;
Time's tragedy is in that aching stoop;
Through this dread shape humanity betrayed,
Plundered, profaned and disinherited,
Cries protest to the Judges of the World,
A protest that is also prophecy.

O masters, lords and rulers in all lands,
Is this the handiwork you give to God,
This monstrous thing distorted and soul-quenched?
How will you ever straighten up this shape;
Touch it again with immortality;
Give back the upward looking and the light;
Rebuild in it the music and the dream;
Make right the immemorial infamies,
Perfidious wrongs, immedicable woes?

O masters, lords and rulers in all lands,
How will the Future reckon with this Man?
How answer his brute question in that hour
When whirlwinds of rebellion shake the world?
How will it be with kingdoms and with kings—
With those who shaped him to the thing he is—
When this dumb Terror will reply to God
After the silence of the centuries?

Markham's poem is a warning to America no less than to Europe. Professor Edward L. Ross of the University of Wisconsin, probably the leading American university in the department of social and political science, has given us the result of his study of Russia in the course of 20,000 miles of traveling in Russia. His book is entitled "Russia in Upheaval."

Professor Ross applies the lessons of the Russian revolution to America in this language:

Let it not be supposed that the UNITED STATES, with its qualified POLITICAL democracy, will prove immune to anti-capitalistic agitation. The fact is that our society is one of the most vulnerable BECAUSE WE HAVE CLUNG SO LONG TO THE LAW AND THE POLITICS OF AN OUTWORN INDIVIDUALISM THAT THE RESULTING DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH AND INCOME would be grotesque if it were not so tragic. " " "

Professor Ross continues in these significant words:

The labor-fighting, labor-crushing policies which many employers' associations delight in are an anachronism, and those who persist in them should be tolerated about as long as smokers are tolerated in a powder factory.

BE A FRIEND OF YOUR OWN

You know you are being dragged down by your associates, but you like the company too well to try to break the combination.

If you realize that you are on the wrong road to success, isn't it easier to break away now than it will be later?

Surely you are not intending to lead straight to destruction.

Concertial, companionable these intimates may be, but if your ultimate success is endangered because your chums help you spend more than you can make or cause you to undermine your health, and blast your prospects by dissipation of one kind of another, you have not the sort of control over yourself which you should have.

Cut loose, regardless of what your friends think, and work for your own future.

DEAR EDITOR.

YOU DON'T know it.

BUT FOR the past week.

OUT HERE in the West.

I'VE HAD something.

THAT THE doctor told me.

WAS NEARLY the flu.

AND I couldn't work.

AND ALL that saved me.

FROM HAVING failed.

TO SEND back the bacon.

WAS THE two a day.

I HAD written.

DURING THE week before.

AND THE way I date them.

IT MAKES you think.

I WRITE one each day.

AND THE only reason.

I'M TELLING you this.

IS THE doctor says.

I'M NOT well yet.

AND I'VE got to be careful.

AND NOT do anything.

FOR THE next few days.

AND I think he's right.

BECAUSE the way I feel.

I'M NOT very happy.

AND MY mind doesn't work.

AND I'M a little wabbly.

AND I want to tell you.

THAT IF it should happen.

YOU DON'T hear from me.

FOR THE next few days.

YOU'LL KNOW I'm resting.

AND WHERE I'm going.

THEY HAVE lots of cows.

AND SCORES of hens.

AND IT'S all out doors.

FOR MILES and miles.

AND DRINKING fresh milk.

AND EATING fresh eggs.

AND BREATHING fresh air.

THE DOCTOR says.

THAT IN less than a week.

I CAN drive a plow.

BUT, OF course, I won't.

AND, ANYWAY.

IT WILL be the first time

IN THE past five years.

THAT I'VE quit for a day.

AND I hate to do it.

BUT THE way I feel.

THIS VERY minute.

WHILE I'M sitting here.

AND WRITING this.

I'VE GOT to do it.

AND THEN, besides.

I WANT to ask you.

IF IT wouldn't be foolish.

TO PAY a doctor.

FOR TELLING you something.

THAT YOU ought to do.

AND THEN not do it.

AND PARTICULARLY so.

IF YOU wanted to do.

WHAT THE doctor told you.

YOU OUGHT to do.

IF YOU get what I mean.

AND IF you'll excuse me.

FOR JUST a few days.

I'LL BE much obliged.

I THANK you.

Four and Twenty Blackbirds in a Pie

TWENTY-FOUR blackbirds made a feast for old King Cole. Artist "Jimmy" Bresee went King Cole one better when he staged his famous "Pie" dinner some years ago—offering his guests as the piece de resistance of the dinner an enormous pie, borne in on the shoulders of four men; and from the pie stepped graceful Susie Johnson, artist's model!

Now, James L. Bresee is sixty-four—and always has remained impervious to Cupid's wiles. But "Jimmy" Bresee has always done the unexpected thing. And so at sixty-four he has got himself engaged to a charming maid of the Southland in as romantic a manner as any gay young blade. This unusual story is one of the many attractive features in the Magazine Section with next Sunday's Advertiser and American.

Among the others is a complete story of the race by airplane to be made to the North Pole this Summer in the interests of science, between Britain and America—Captain Robert Bartlett, backed by the Aero Club of America, flying from Etah, via Cape Columbia, and Captain Salisbury Jones of the British Northern Exploration Company, flying from Spitsbergen.

Then there is a fascinating story of the real romance of the ex-Emperor and Empress of Austria, and how it, too, has been wrecked in the holocaust of empire.

A brand new disease is invading America—brought in by Japanese laborers to California. They got it from working in the rice fields.

And then, of course, there are the Comics—"Bringing Up Father," "Bomb McNutt," and the rest of your favorites.

A feast of good things!

Next Sunday, in the Advertiser-American.

KINDLY LADY AND THE GRUFF CAR DRIVER

By Winifred Black

THIS is what I saw in a street car the other day.

A beautiful little old lady and her comfortable, middle-aged daughter signalled the car.

The comfortable, middle-aged daughter wore a modish coat that made her look about as graceful as a German sausage, and a modish hat that covered every bit of her hair and balanced its ugly self on her shoulder blades and made her look somehow like some grotesque caricature. She carried a pretty, new bag, and wore good gloves and decent, self-respecting boots.

The little old lady, who was so evidently her mother, was in black silk, not taffeta, not peau de soie, not satin merveilleuse, just "black silk," and it was trimmed with bugles, perfectly good bugles. They must have been at least twenty-five years old, yet by a strange change fashionable again. And she wore a neat little black bonnet, with bugles all around it, and a black ostrich tip, and she wore a real India shawl, folded crosswise and pinned with a great amethyst pin that wasn't a day under seventy-five years old.

When the little old lady stepped upon the car I saw her shoes. They were heelless and they had rubber in the sides, and she wore snow-white stockings. What would you give to know where she got those shoes?

A Curt Command

"Step lively!" said the conductor. "Come, come; step lively—we can't be all day waiting for your."

His voice was a snarl and his young face was tied in a perfect network of irritation.

He showed the middle-aged daughter into the car and when the little old lady didn't step lively enough he seized her by the shoulder and gave her a rough push that almost sent her headlong to the floor.

The daughter flushed and looked angry, but when the conductor came to get the fare the little old lady looked kindly into his tired face and smiled gently, as a mother smiles upon her son.

"Young man," said the little old lady, "you must not get so excited. Why, you'll wear yo'self all out and be old befo' yo' time, and yo' seem such a nice young man, too. Don't worry so about the hurry, it will make yo' right down sick."

The little old lady's face was full of motherly concern.

"I reckon yo' all don't get scarcely time to breathe up here anyhow," she said gently.

Shamed Into Decency

The conductor's face flushed, he raised his hand to his cap in a kind of shamefaced salute, and answered in an accent almost as broad as the little old lady's delicious own:

"Yes, ma'am. I reckon you're right. I certainly am forgettin' how to live."

And when the little old lady got off the car that young conductor helped her and smiled and said: "Good mornin', ma'am," as she stepped off.

And all day long after I saw this the crowded city seemed less selfish and rude, and I felt as if every stranger who came along might turn out to be "kin" somehow and kindly and human at the very least.

I wonder how long it took the worried young conductor to forget all about the little old lady and the sweet smile she gave him?

"Old Glory"

The popular name of our flag is said to have been applied first in 1831 by William Driver, captain of the brig Charles Doggett.

One day, just before starting on a voyage to the Southern Pacific, a friend came aboard and presented Captain Driver with a large American flag. It was sent aloft, and when flung to the breeze Captain Driver christened it "Old Glory."

He took it to the Southern Pacific, and years after, when old age forced him to relinquish the sea, he treasured the flag as an old friend.

Prior to the outbreak of hostilities between the North and South "Old Glory" was flung to the breeze every day from the window of Captain Driver's Nashville house, but when the conflict began the old flag had to be secreted.

It was kept out of sight till General Nelson appeared in Nashville, when Captain Driver presented it to the General to hoist on the Capitol.

"The United States and Japan agree on management of the Siberian railways." That is one cable announcement. Two officers and sixty "men" were killed fighting recently in Russia. A few hundred others are wounded or missing. Missing, probably, means dead and not found.

Siberian railways and Northern Russia are a long way from Washington, D. C. American responsibility seems to spread very much all over the globe.

British statesmen assure our delegates that Europe looks to us to manage many of the little, out-of-the-way, troublesome places and see to it that they behave. There is plenty of work cut out—if we choose to accept it—and our Secretaries of the Treasury will be busy raising billions for many a generation to come, if Uncle Sam continues his role of international Santa Claus.

A bill to spend seven hundred and twenty-one millions on new fighting ships goes through smoothly. We need the ships.

Once that sum of money would have aroused interest. But not now, for it is not even one billion, and the billion is the national unit.

Ebert, the barrel maker, is elected first President of the German Republic, with an annual salary of $250,000 a year, one million marks, more than three times the salary of Woodrow Wilson, about double the salary of the French President.

It is a big salary, but Ebert is a bargain compared with the Kaiser, for the little Eberts will not put perpetual burdens on the German people, nor each one be supplied with a separate salary, or a regiment of men to play with.

German "aristocrats," so-called, will resent the choice of a harness maker, son of peasants, as head of the German people, and they will not be comforted by the conveniently forgotten fact that their ancestors started as brigands, while the Kaiser's people built themselves up as usurious money lenders and land sharks.

It would be a startled ghost if Karl Marx could come back and see a proletarian getting a million marks a year salary and the Kaiser exiled in Holland wondering whether his cousin on the English throne will save him from being hanged.

Here in America we have an assortment of hereditary financial aristocrats, very recent mushrooms, it is true, but very proud of themselves. Many of them will be horrified at the idea of a harness-making Socialist getting $250,000 a year, with the power of Germany back of him. These same Americans leave incomes ten times bigger to their accidentally worthy or unworthy sons to be spent as they choose in using up the labor of other men, and they think that is "good American democracy."

How do you suppose the former Kaiser feels as he reads the latest news? He said that the Ebert Socialist party was made up of men "unworthy to bear the name of German." Now one of them, and a very simple one, now bears the name of FIRST PRESIDENT OF GERMANY.

The Rev. Dr. Simons, recently head of the Methodist Church in Russia, tells the Senate that Bolshevik success is due to financial and other assistance "from the lower East Side of New York."

Says he: "I have a firm conviction that this agitation is Yiddish (he means Jewish). I don't think the Bolshevik movement in Russia would have been a success except for the support it got in New York on the East Side."

Many East Side New York Jews will be surprised to learn that there is so much money among them. Their way of living does not show it. The Bolshevik army and government are spending hundreds of millions supposed to have been taken from imperial treasuries and from bank vaults. It is enlightening to learn what an important part New York's East Side has played in this world affair.

Just at this time, however, when the London Times and others testify to Jewish massacres on the Continent, more bloody than ever and based on the same old vile religious hatred, it would be well for reverend gentlemen to make accusations against any race or religion only upon absolute proof.

What PROOF does the Reverend Methodist Simons offer in support of his charge against New York Jews?

And what would he say if some conspicuous Jew, without proof, accuse the Methodists as Mr. Simons accuses Jews?
